ARCHBOLD NOT LIAR, HE SAYS

Adds That He Will Not Endure the Colonel's Accusations.

GONE TO EUROPE FOR FEW WEEKS

Leaves Country to Be Taken Care of by the Newspaper Men.

New York, Aug. 24.—"I am not a liar. I am not accusomed to being so accused and will not endure it lightly."

John D. Archbold, of the Standard Oil company, made this brief statement before sailing for Europe today in reply to Col. Theodore Roosevelt's charges that he told untruths while on the stand at Washington.

"What do you mean when you say you will not endure it lightly?" Mr. Archbold was asked.

Mr. Archbold waved his hand deprecatingly then walked down the pier and boarded the White Star line Majestic. He will remain in Europe for several weeks. Just before stepping on board he waved his hands at the reporters and said: "Take good care of the country, boys."

Among other things in the statement to which Mr. Archbold referred, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"I wish to reiterate that until Mr. Penrose made his speech I never had heard it suggested that Mr. Archbold had contributed to the campaign or been the means through which any contributions had been made.

"But I do not for one moment believe that Mr. Archbold's testimony is truthful. He apparently possesses such a moral stand that he does not understand the infamous accusations he is making against Mr. Bliss. Mr. Bliss is now dead, but during the seven years that elapsed before Mr. Bliss' death after Mr. Archbold claims he made the contribution in question, Mr. Archbold never brought up any statement of this kind.

"He now says Mr. Bliss warned him that he was making a serious mistake in not contributing the extra amount of money and that later on, when the administration began to deal with the Standard Oil people, Mr. Bliss said it would have been different if they had done as he asked them."

"STAY-AT-HOME" CAMPAIGN ASKED

People Who Are Not Politicians Advise the Governor What to Do.

WILL THINK IT OVER

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 24.—With the idea that the country is tired of stumping tours and an excess of speech making, Governor Woodrow Wilson announced today that his present plans call for very few campaign speeches, not many outside of the state of New Jersey and then only on particular occasions to which he will have received invitations.

The governor said that next Monday morning he would confer with Vice-Chairman McAdoo and as many members of the national committee as could be gathered. The plan of speaking engagements will be arranged at that time, although the governor explained that his advisers were unanimously opposed to a swing around the circle or stumping tour of any kind. Out of 200 letters received from people who were not politicians 175 suggested that the governor conduct "a dignified stay-at-home campaign."

"There will not be any large number of speeches away from New Jersey," said Governor Wilson today. "Still nobody knows what the developments of the campaign will be. It is the general judgment that this is the most effective way to conduct this campaign. From my general correspondence I find that a great many of the people believe that I ought not to make any great number of speeches. The country is tired of stumping tours."

M'COMBS IS SERIOUSLY ILL.

May Not be Able to Take Active Part in the Campaign.

New York, Aug. 24.—William F. McCombs, who managed the ante-convention campaign for Governor Wilson, and later was named democratic national chairman, may share little of the activity of the democratic campaign.

Seriously ill with intestinal poisoning which, instead of yielding to treatment has become more troublesome, the national chairman may be unable to leave his bed in Flushing, L. I., for a month. During Mr. McCombs' illness Vice-Chairman William G. McAdoo will be in charge of the campaign.

HE WANTED A BOY.

DETECT PLOT TO KILL HIM

Scheme to Assassinate Representative Johnson at Washington.

INTERESTS BACK OF IT HE SAYS

Will Do Nothing Unless Attempt is Made to Carry It Out.

Washington, Aug. 24.—An alleged scheme to kill Representative Johnson, of Kentucky, chairman of the house committee on the District of Columbia, so as to head off certain proposed legislation, has been disclosed to Mr. Johnson and a sworn statement has put the Kentuckian and his friends on guard.

"I know all about it," said Mr. Johnson today, "but I'd rather not say what interests are back of the idea."

The affidavit of a Washington man, detailing a conversation he heard on a street car in which one of those talking said he had been following Mr. Johnson for three nights to kill him, is locked up today in the office of Speaker Clark.

"The story is absolutely true," said Mr. Johnson.

"Who are the parties?" he was asked.

"I do not care to say now."

"What do you propose to do?"

"Nothing, unless there's an attempt to execute the threat. I have all the facts but I don't want to go into details."

Mr. Johnson has been very aggressive in his advocacy for legislation affecting the District of Columbia. He is said to have incurred the emnity of many people who interpret his views as hostile to the interests of the city.

COMPANIES FAIL TO AVOID TRIAL

Complaints Made by Inter-State Commerce Commission Found Good.

INDICTMENTS STAND

Washington, Aug. 24.—The Adams and American Express companies, indicted for violations of the interstate commerce act, must face trial. There is no escape through pleadings that they are not corporations or companies within the meaning of the law.

That in effect was the decision of Federal Judge Hazel, at Buffalo, in an opinion today in the case begun by the interstate commerce commission against the two companies, alleging overcharges and granting unlawful concessions. The commission was notified of Judge Hazel's decision. Very recently Judge Hollister, in the United States district court at Cincinnati, ordered a similar indictment against the Adams company quashed because, he said, the company, being merely a stock association and not a corporation, could not be indicted.

He held that it would be necessary for the interstate commerce commission to secure the indictment of individual stockholders in order to maintain a case in court. The commission realized that such a proceeding would be impracticable. Judge Hazel held that the indictments brought at Buffalo were sound, because in law the express companies are legal entities and indictable as such under the interstate commerce act. The commission will press the case.

RETURNS WITH THE GIRL.

Lieutenant Eisenhut left early this morning for Clairmont, near Indianapolis, having in custody Bertha Oser, the 18 year old girl arrested by Chief Abbott Friday evening. The Oser girl has been on parole from the state girls' school at Indianapolis, but eight months ago left the private home where she had been placed. A description of the girl was sent the local police and Chief Abbott found her at a table in a local restaurant.

CONGRESS IS ABOUT READY

Few Little Odds and Ends to Close Up Before It Adjourns.

PRESIDENT TAFT WILL ALSO QUIT

Expects to Leave Late in the Day for His Summer Home.

Washington, Aug. 24.—With both houses of congress today marking time awaiting agreement on a single appropriation bill, the adjournment of the second session of the Sixty-second congress was assured before sundown.

Earl ytoday both house and senate sent the general deficiency appropriation bill to a conference over minor disputes and both settled down to clear decks for adjournment. The adjournment resolution was drawn in the house and awaiting the passage of the final appropriation bill before its introduction.

Plans were arranged to have President Taft go to the capital about mid-afternoon and take up the task of signing the bills passed in the final moments of the senate. The president expects to go directly from the capitol to take the 5:35 p. m. train for Beverly.

Members Went Prepared.

Members of both houses went to the capitol today prepared to carry out their program for adjournment sine die late in the afternoon. Only one possible obstacle stood in the way—Representative Murdock and his point of order, no quorum, which forced the house to adjourn last night without acting upon the postoffice appropriation bill. Assurances had been given, however, that Mr. Murdock would not press the point again. There probably is not a quorum of either branch in the city and if the point were insisted upon adjournment today would be out of the question.

Excepting the postoffice bill, which it was believed would be disposed of in a few minutes, only one important piece of legislation remained to be acted upon today. That was the general deficiency bill ready to be reported.

Mr. Murdock's fight against the conference report on the postal appropriation bill providing payment of not more than $35,000 to the St. Louis Terminal association for carrying mails across the Eads bridge, collapsed today when the report was adopted without Mr. Murdock voting against it. This, the leaders said, practically assured adjournment of congress before night. Some of the senate amendments to the generad deficiency bill were disagreed to by the house and the bill was sent back for further adjustment. Representatives Cannon, Fitzgerald and Sisson were

BULLETIN.

London, Aug. 24.—The general telegraph office of London is on fire.

All telegraphic business, including trans-Atlantic cablegrams, is practically at a standstill.

A brief cablegram to the Western Union Cable company this afternoon brought the news that the Central telegraph office of London was on fire. At the same time the company added that it could not guarantee any further deliveries of telegraphic messages in London for the moment.

The general telegraph office is situated almost in the center of the city of London and 500 instruments are constantly at work there, receiving and transmitting all the telegrams sent in the united kingdom. The telegraphs in Great Britain and Ireland are a government monopoly and no private wires are allowed, so that the putting out of order of the central institution means temporarily, at any rate, the entire stoppage of all communication by telegraph.

MAJOR RAY IS A POLITICIAN

House Committee Opposed to Appointing a Deputy Paymaster.

TOO ACTIVE FOR PRESIDENT TAFT

Explanation Demanded of the President and Army Record Cited.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The house committee on war department expenditures today reported that Major Beecher B. Ray, U. S. A., whom the president yesterday nominated to be deputy paymaster general of the army, had been engaged in political activity, particularly in the interest of President Taft, and has been four times charged with serious offenses, never vindicated, and never been disciplined more severely than a reprimand.

The investigation of Major Ray's case attracted wide attention because of the investigating committee's charges that Secretary Stimson was withholding important papers bearing on it. It is believed the committee's report was hastened by President Taft's nomination of Major Ray for promotion yesterday. Ray is in line for advancement under the law. It was said the president and Secretary Stimson decided to send his nomination and leave its confirmation to the senate. That a fight will be made there has been announced. The committee findings in part follow:

Has Been Too Active.

"Major Ray has been engaged in political activity in the interest of the republican party and particularly in the interest of the president.

"In connection with one of the charges made against Major Ray court-martial proceedings were stopped by a cablegram from the chief of staff without apparent reason. The papers in the case were withheld from the office of the adjutant general, where they should have been filed, and were stored away in a secret place where they were not accessible in the ordinary business of the department and from which they were not produced when called for by order of the secretary of war.

"Major Ray has been shown more personal consideration in assignment of stations than any other paymaster in the army, has been stationed in Chicago during every presidential campaign since he has been in the service

TRAPPED HIM AT SAME OLD GAME

Caught Him Second Time Through a Matrimonial Agency.

HAD HIM ARRESTED

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Deserted by her husband, whom she had met through a matrimonial paper, Mrs. C. H. Moore advertised in the same publication under an assumed name and received an answer from the unsuspecting spouse, who expressed an earnest desire "to marry the beautiful Mrs. Henrietta Butler, with an income of $10,000."

Finally "Mrs. Butler" informed Moore that if he would come to Englewood, her home, she would talk it over.

Moore took a train last night from Detroit. Mrs. Moore, wearing a heavy veil, was awaiting him at the station. With her were three detectives.

"I love you," exclaimed Moore as he jumped from the train and saw "Mrs. Butler."

"That's funny," the woman said, and she removed her veil.

LEAVE NEW YORK IN GREAT HASTE

LOOKING UP OWNERS

New York, Aug. 24.—Scores of gamblers and keepers of disorderly houses have suddenly found themselves suffering from ill health and subpoena servers attached to District Attorney Whitman's office said today that it was surprising how many persons of the underworld had found it necessary to leave the city at this time.

Ten process servers invaded Broadway in three automobiles to serve subpoenas to appear in the John Doe proceedings to inquire into police graft. Only four of the men for whom subpoenas had been issued were found. Scores of others for whom subpoenas were issued, it was learned, had left the city for various health resorts.

Emery R. Buckner, counsel for the aldermanic investigation committee into police corruption today made it clear that no person would be permitted to testify before the committee who ought to be arraigned on a criminal charge. Mr. Buckner said:

"It will be the duty of counsel to find out in advance what a witness knows, then have him testify. It will not be possible for a witness to get testimony into the record that will give him immunity from a criminal charge.

"I repeat with emphasis that the aldermanic committee does not purpose to lend aid and comfort or give immunity to any crook in New York."

District Attorney Whitman has received from Police Commissioner Waldo a list containing the addresses, names of supposed proprietors of alleged gambling and disorderly houses and owners of the property. Police Commissioner Waldo said the state's attorney could make public the names of the owners of the property if he desired. So far as the police records show, it would be the first time that the names of owners of such property had been even threatened with publicity. Police Commissioner Waldo intimated that the names of many of the owners were socially and financially prominent.

WHEELING MAYOR DIES.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 24.—Charles C. Schmidt, mayor of Wheeling, collapsed at the breakfast table this morning and died in a few minutes, of heart trouble. He was serving his fourth term as the city's chief executive and was grand trustee of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks.

Bart Resigns from Republican Party to Cast Lot With Progressives.

PLENTY TO FILL ALL THE PLACES

Chairman Houk Says He is Not Worried and is Not Surprised.

L. L. Bart, committeeman from the First precinct in the republican county central committee, has mailed his resignaton to County Chairman A. E. Houk, and at the meeting held this afternoon in the office of W. N. Ballou, Bull Moose leaders who are urging republican candidates to leave the ticket informed him that a similar office will be given him on the progressive ticket when it is organized.

Mr. Bart is among the first of the prominent republicans to send in his resignation, so that he may become affiliated with the third party. His letter of resignation follows:

"Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 24, 1912.—Mr. A. E. Hauk, Chairman Allen County Republican Central Committee.—Dear Sir: When I was selected as a precinct committeeman of the republican party last spring it was as a progressive republican. An entirely new political realignment has taken place since then and I find a party of reactionary or stand-pat republicans and a new party composed of progressives and known as the progressive party, with Theodore Roosevelt as its leader on the national ticket and Albert J. Beveridge as its nominee for governor.

"It is my desire to give my support to these two great leaders of the people and the party which they represent. I deem it my duty to resign my position as committeeman to take effect at once.

Republican County Chairman Amos E. Houk declares that he is not worrying over what action county candidates take in the question of resigning from the ticket and casting their lot with the third party, and he adds that it does not make any particular difference to the republican party what they do, for if resignations are forthcoming following the meeting today with the progressive leaders and central committeemen, there are plenty of real republic-

Women Up to Their Necks in Politics

When Colton Overslept

COLTON MERRELL, of 1332 Washington boulevard west, came down town to his work a little late one morning. Colton is a young man of seventeen, and has been so regular in his duties that some little wonderment was expressed when it was found that he had not arrived at his work at the usual morning hour. However, his explanation was eminently satisfactory. He said:

"Our folks have been up at the lake for a vacation outing, while I stayed at home nights and was kept busy at my work during the day. Of course, during the evenings sometimes I went out to Robison park and other places for an airing, and I was out to the park on the evening that father and mother wrote me that they would arrive home in their automobile. Well, when I got back from the park that evening and went out home, I found the lights all out in the house and decided that I would go in as carefully as I could so as not to disturb the folks. The ride, I figured, was a tiresome one and I didn't want to add to their discomfort when I knew they needed the rest. So I tiptoed around to the back porch and sat there in the dark to take off my shoes. After I had done this, I removed my tie and collar so as to make as little noise in the house as possible. Then I unlocked the back door carefully and crept up to my room. I undressed in the dark and climbed into bed as quietly as I could. The springs sent out a loud 'bing.' I listened to see if the noise had aroused anyone and was glad that I heard no sound. Soon I fell asleep.

"I took off my shoes."

"Well, the next morning when I opened my eyes it seemed later than usual, and when I looked at my watch I found I had overslept. I had been accustomed to waking on time, but on this particular morning I had depended on mother calling me. Well, she didn't call me, and that's why I didn't get up in time. And the reason she didn't call me is that father and mother didn't come home until the next day, because the rain had changed their plans."

ARCHBOLD NOT LIAR, HE SAYS

his statement of last night in which he said he did not believe John D. Archbold's testimony before the senate investigating committee was true and in which he charged Mr. Archbold with a "wicked assault on a dead man" in connection with Mr. Archbold's testimony concerning an alleged conversation with the late Cornelius N. Bliss. Nor would Col. Roosevelt discuss the possibility of his testifying before the senate committee.

Col. Roosevelt went rowing today on the bay with Mrs. Roosevelt and other members of his family. The party took luncheon along, intending to picnic in the woods and return to Sagamore Hill in time for dinner. On Wednesday afternoon Col. Roosevelt expects to start on his trip to Vermont, where he plans to spend three days campaigning. He will return to Oyster Bay the following Sunday morning. The next day, Monday, Sept. 2, he will rise before the sun, motor to New York and catch an early train for his western trip, which he expects will last about six weeks.

WILL NOT TRANSFER THEM.

Senate Committee Will Not Hold Hearings in New York.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Plans to transfer the hearings of the senate special committee on campaign contributions from Washington to New York have been abandoned. The committee so far has been charged only with investigating campaign expenditures and contributions in 1904 and 1908, but it will look particularly into the Penrose-Archbold controversy over the Standard oil contributions to the 1901 campaign. The action of the committee was discussed at an executive meeting today.

The date of future hearings and the witnesses to be requested to appear was left open for decision until the senate acts on the Penrose resolutions directing the committee to investigate the Standard oil contributions and the Reed amendment directing the committee to investigate contributions to the presidential primaries and the conventions of 1912. The senate was expected to act today on these features. A majority of the committee is said to be in favor of resuming the inquiry late in September instead of proceeding at once. The committee today did not consider the proposal to summon Colonel Roosevelt.

and was sent there last winter by order originating from the white house.

Call Public Attention.

"The committee believes that public attention ought to be called to this case because if one army officer is allowed favors and immunity as a result of political services or influence, it must be a pernicious example to all officers. If such practices prevail at all, it is hard to see how the army can resist being drawn more and more into politics and becoming a political machine.

"The committee states its findings without intending disrespect to the president of the United States and in the hope that he may see fit to make public such explanation of the circumstances set forth as will assure the country that the army is not being used for political purposes."

As to the charges relating to the wife of an employe of the war department, on account of which Major Ray was severely reprimanded, the committee concluded there was ample justification for failure to proceed with the court-martial as the employe who complained effected reconciliation with his wife and refused to press the charge. The course directed by the president and followed by the paymaster general was the only proper one under all the circumstances, the committee agreed.

BABY BORN IN AUTO TONNEAU

Mother and New Born Babe Were Over Mile from Hospital.

BOTH ARE DOING WELL

A remarkable local case in which a baby was born in the tonneau of an automobile which was carrying the mother to a hospital for confinement has been brought to the attention of local medical men and is arousing extreme interest, as the baby is lusty and well and will live.

The birth of the child took place in the first three squares from the family home to the hospital, considerably over a mile in distance. The husband was riding in the back seat with the mother, and the doctor was driving the car. The machine did not stop when the birth occurred, but the physician speeded up the car, reaching the hospital in the fastest time possible.

BOY FINDS $10 IN BIRD'S NEST.

Jersey Lad Discovers Bill Sparrows Had Purloined.

Caldwell, N. J., Aug. 24.—Ordered by his mother to make war on the sparrows that had taken possession of attic windows, John Bowman, 13 years old, was so successful in his work of destruction that in tearing the half dozen nests apart he discovered in one of them a piece of green paper, which, upon being examined, proved to be a good part of a $10 bill. In other parts of the nests he found other portions of the greenback. He gathered all he could find and will forward them to the treasury department for redemption. When neighbors Bowman learned of the find they, too, began the task of destroying nests about their homes, not only of the little sparrow, but everything that looked like a nest, but Bowman's luck did not follow with others. The boy now expects to take a few days' trip with the proceeds of his find when he is reimbursed by Uncle Sam. The main part of the bill was in a fairly good condition and had been placed by the birds in the bed of the nest.

WORKMEN PAY RESPECTS.

Immense Throng Passes the Bier of the Dead Commander.

London, Aug. 24.—No fewer than 27,000 workmen filed past the bier of the late Gen. William Booth this morning. The scene was an intensely impressive one as the men marched bareheaded through Congress hall, many of them carrying their tool bags. A long line of men was waiting some time before the opening of the doors of the hall where the body was lying in state. A heavy cold rain was unheeded by the mourners. Officers of the Salvation Army marshalled them at the doors and they passed through the hall in silence. There was a moving scene when Mrs. Booth-Hellberg, the chief of the Salvation Army in Denmark, came into the hall with her family, took places beside the catafalque and sang a consecration hymn.

Mr. Lee, who has established his headquarters here, states that four prominent concerns of Warsaw and seventeen at Elkhart have become members of the association which he represents.

THE WEATHER.

LOCAL FORECAST.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 24.—For Fort Wayne and Vicinity: Increasing cloudiness with probably showers late tonight or Sunday.

GENERAL FORECAST.

For Indiana and Ohio: Generally fair tonight and Sunday.

For Lower Michigan: Thundershowers tonight or Sunday; warm in east portion tonight.

SUMMARY OF WEATHER CONDITIONS

The storm which is passing beyond the St. Lawrence valley has given rains over New York and New England during the last twenty-four hours. Another storm is spreading southeastward from the northwest, is central over Minnesota this morning, and is giving some rains over northern Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa. Over the central, southern and western states fair weather has been quite general. It is somewhat warmer this morning over the middle and upper Mississippi valley.

The northwestern storm will spread southeastward, giving showers over Michigan, and it is probable that the rainfall will extend as far southward as this locality, so that showers may be expected in this section late tonight or Sunday.

Moose Lodge Picnic Will Draw from All Parts of the State.

HAVE BIG PROGRAM

Officers of the local lodge of Moose expect at least 400 visiting brothers here tomorrow for the picnic to be held all day at the Driving park. Special cars over the interurban will carry visitors from all parts of the state, and great delegations are coming from Findlay, O., Huntington, Marion, Ind., and Jackson, Mich.

Word was received this morning by Frank Emrick that sixty Moose will comprise a special party from Findlay, O., and a delegation from Huntington will come in a chartered car over this division of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company. Fifty more are coming from Marion.

Great preparations have been made for the picnic. A feast at noon will be followed by an athletic program, and later a program of music and speaking will entertain the crowd. Among others who will attend and deliver an address is John McPhee, of Indianapolis, district deputy supreme dictator of Indiana. A telegram from Mr. McPhee this morning states that he will be here without fail.

THE DEATHS

GEZYBOWSKI.

The one year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Gezybowski, of 1431 Hayden street, died at 1:15 o'clock Friday afternoon at St. Joseph's hospital, after a brief illness. The infant became sick yesterday morning and apparently suffered from cholera infantum.

Surviving besides the parents are three sisters and one brother. Funeral services Monday morning at 1:30 o'clock from the residence and at 2 o'clock from the Polish Catholic church.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

INVESTIGATING THEIR DEATHS.

Coroner Will Exhume Bodies to Look for Poison.

West Hammond, Ills., Aug. 24.—The coroners of Cook county, Illinois, and Lake county, Indiana, today began an investigation of the mysterious deaths of several persons in the resorts of this village with a view to learning whether there is evidence of foul play, and if so if it is sufficient to win criminal prosecution. The deaths of Esther Harrison and John Messmaker will be the first investigated.

Both died in a resort run by Henry Foss and it is alleged that both were buried at the dead of night without an investigation. The body of the Harrison woman will be exumed and an examination for traces of poison made. It is alleged that both persns died of poison. The Harrison woman came to this place from Indiana Harbor and it is alleged that her body was kept in the Foss resort for two days before it was buried. Miss Virginia Brooks is behind the investigation.

CALLS SPEEDER COWARD.

Indianapolis Judge Also Gave Him Term in Workhouse.

Indianapolis, Aug. 24.—Police Judge Collins bitterly censured Fred Rouse, 1201 North Alabama street, when testimony in police court showed that Rouse several days ago drove his automobile against a wagon, throwing Jeremiah Marlee, 1504 Yandes street, to the pavement and injuring him severely, and then speeded away. Rouse was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to serve thirty days in the workhouse. He appealed.

"Your conduct shows what a moral coward sits behind the steering wheel of your automobile," said Judge Collins. "If I had been this old man's son it would have been some time before you could have appeared in police court."

Rouse with his wife and a man named Tompkins were riding in an automobile on Massachusetts avenue near Pennsylvania street. Marlee was driving in his wagon on Massachusetts avenue. Witnesses said Rouse was driving about twenty miles an hour.

CONTRACTORS' BILL HELD UP.

Erectors of Notification Stand Asked to Show Draft of Plans.

Indianapolis, Ihd., Aug. 24.—Fred B. Johnson, secretary of the committee on general arrangements for the Marshall notification exercises, said yesterday that Brandt Bros., the contractors in charge of the erection of the stand which collapsed Tuesday, had been asked to furnish the committee with a draft of the original plans for the platform. The committee investigating the affair, including Mr. Johnson and Robert E. Springsteen, believes that nothing will be found to show the real cause of the disaster, though every effort is being made to trace a weakness in the plans for the structure. At a meeting of the general committee last night at the Indiana Democratic club, payment of the various bills contracted was taken up and the bill to Brandt Bros. was refused until the result of the investigation of the accident is reported.

PERMENTER IS ACQUITTED.

Son of Mississippi Planter Found Not Guilty.

Winona, Miss., Aug. 24.—Swinton Permenter, son of a Mississippi planter, was acquitted today of the charge of murder in connection with the violent death of Miss Jane Sharp, but two murders that occurred after accusations were made against Permenter still remain to be cleared. Two years ago Miss Sharp was found dead in a pine woods on the edge of her father's plantation. Permenter on his first trial was convicted but the supreme court ordered a new trial. In the meantime Permenter's family, led by by a younger son, Walter, engaged private detectives in an effort to uncover additional evidence bearing on the girl's death. One of the detectives, Ben Walker, was killed last autumn and three weeks ago the brother, Walter Permenter was found dead.

When the verdict acquitting Permenter was rendered there was no court demonstration. Investigation of the other two killings continues.

BLUE JACKETS PATROL STREETS.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Detachments of blue jackets from the gunboat Annapolis and the collier Justin patrolling the city at night; an armed guard of volunteers, made up largely of the foreign element, acting as police during the day, and all foreign women and children in the port sleeping on the naval vessels described the situation in Corinto, according to the last report from American Consul Johnson.

The report was dated Aug. 22. Telegraph and rail communication between the port and Managua had then been severed nearly a week by the rebels, who were believed to be in possession of stations on the line of railroad. The last message from American Minister Weitzel was brought down from the capital to the coast by Commander Terhune, of the Annapolis, who had gone up to Managua to confer with Minister Weitzel. The gun boat Denver is due at Corinto today or tomorrow. She probably will be sent immediately to San Juan del Sur and maintained there for awhile to keep up communication by wireless with the Aannapolis and Justin at Corinto. As soon as the Denver's marines are landed in Corinto, probably they will be sent inland to reopen and maintain telegraphic and rail communication with the capital.

At 3:52 o'clock the senate took a recess until 6 p. m. awaiting a report from the conferees on the general deficiency bill. President Taft had intended to leave Washington at 5:35 p. m. This action will delay his departure.

MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE.

Fits Men and Women for Practical Christian Work.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, which affords a remarkable combination of Bible study and practical christian work, is in no sense a theological seminary or rival of the seminaries. It does not teach Hebrew or Greek, but it has five different methods of teaching the English Bible. The training is so practical and the religious atmosphere so inspiring, that hundreds of ministers and theological students go there to supplement their seminary course. The method is to combine practical training with lectures and study.

The students are shown how to use the Bible in leading men to Christ, and in meeting the various excuses which arise in Christian work. Each student has from three to five assignments a week for personal work in jails, missions, gospel wagon or other services, and they are examined on their personal work as well as on their studies. In this way they get an all-round experience which the classroom alone could never give.

The course of study covers two years and the tuition is free except private lessons in music. The cost of board and room is $3.75 per week and one hour's work each day.

Last year the enrollment was 772, of whom 470 were men. These came from twenty-five foreign countries, represented forty-five denominations, and we could send out men to conduct services in sixteen different languages. One hundred of these men had received college or theological training.

A postal addressed to Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, Ill., will bring full information.

German Day tomorrow at Germania Park.

ASK FOR FULL 9 CENTS.

Park Board's Estimate for Next Year Same as This.

In its estimate to Controller Cutshall of funds needed for the board's work next year, the full levy of 9 cents is asked. The board received the 9-cent levy last year, and actually needs that much to maintain the present parks and to allow for several new parks which are being considered. The board stated its desire at the meeting this morning in a letter to Controller Cutshall.

City Attorney Harry Hogan gives the opinion that the park board has the authority to extend Beaver avenue through from Home avenue to Broadway for boulevard purposes, and the board is preparing to go ahead with the resolutions for the work.

A plot of land 1,200 by 60 feet in dimensions in Pontiac place has been presented to the board for park purposes.

Our entire stock of Furniture, Carpets and Stoves is included in our present big sale.

SEEN MILES AROUND.

Was Fire Which Destroyed Frank Martin's Barn Friday Night.

Frank Martin's big barn, measuring 100 by 60 feet, was totally destroyed by fire Friday evening, and but little of the contents of hay, grain, implements and several horses was saved. The flames brilliantly illuminated the heavens for miles around the scene of the blaze, attracting motorists and many others to the fire. William Miller is the tenant on the Martin farm.

REED CASES CONTINUED.

The assault and battery cases against James and Frank Reed filed by Burton Weaver were continued in the city police court this morning until next Tuesday. A special trip in the patrol wagon had to be made for the son, Frank Reed, as he had sent in the excuse that he was sick. However, he is said to have been doing chores around the house, and Chief Abbot made the trip after him. The Reeds are out on $50 bail

Build Assembly Hall.

There is ample need of an auditorium or a convention hall of some kind in Fort Wayne and as the whole people of the city will be benefited it is probably just that all should contribute toward building one. An effort to erect a municipal structure and rent part of it would meet opposition on the ground that the municipality can not engage in business for profit.

It will be but a few years before there will be absolute necessity for the expansion of the city hall. There is no unused space in the building now and as business increases more employes will become necessary and in the natural course of things they will have to be supplied with places to work. The police department is confined to quarters that are too small and the basement is dark and unsanitary and sadly in need of improvement.

The cost of constructing and assembly hall in connection with a new city building would be comparatively small and the scheme would overcome the obstacle offered by the statutes. A hall of this kind could be made to maintain itself just as the city market does at this time and additional benefit would acrue in the fact that it could be had by local organizations at a nominal expense because the city could charge no more than cost of lights, janitor service and the other incidentals incurred in the use of the assembly room.

There will probably be little opposition to increased pay for the members of the police department but in granting it the city council ought to get some sort of line on the kind of men who are to draw the money. A competent police officer is entitled to receive the maximum amount in the proposed budget but they are not all of that stripe.

Maybe the Colonel still believes in Santa Claus and labored under the delusion that while Mr. Cortelyou slept the old fellow drove his reindeer on the roof, wormed his way down the chimney and put that $100,000 in the campaign stocking. It's real nice to have such a big campaign fund that an addition of a hundred thousand is too small to need more than passing attention.

LINCOLN AS A TRAVELLER.

(New York World.)

The route taken by the Lincoln family in removing from Indiana to Illinois in 1830 has been officially determined by act of the Illinois legislature, and the state historical society is preparing to mark it with monuments. The route led across the Wabash river at Vincennes, through Lawrenceville, Paris and Shelbyville to Decatur. Abraham Lincoln was twenty-one years old at the time.

The trek of this humble family through the prairies of the middle west possesses the sentimental interest that attaches to everythting relating to Lincoln. Thanks to the spirit which fosters the identification and preservation of all historical landmarks, it will henceforth serve the uses of an automobile "run." But a reflection prompted by the charting of the route is as to how little of a traveller Lincoln was.

As a youth he went down the Mississippi to New Orleans and there witnessed the sale of the slave-girl which inspired his hatred of slavery. He came east to make his Cooper Union address, and again to be inaugurated, and he visited some of the Virginia battle-fields during the war and Gettysburg after. But he knew nothing of the great west beyond the Mississippi, nothing of New England except the few cities in which he spoke following his New York address, and but little of the south.

All the traveling Lincoln did in his lifetime hardly equalled the mileage of a single campaign itinerary of later presidents. He lived before the "swing around the circle" had been originated, before the days of "traveling presidents" with government vessels and private cars at their disposal, before even the "summer capital" at the seashore had been established.

POLITICS AND CITIES.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

"American cities are slow to learn that the police should be as completely separate from politics as the army and navy are," remarks the Philadelphia Record. The remark is true. It might be enlarged to assert that the majority of the governing powers in American cities refuse to learn the lesson. Indeed, we might also object to the comparison, since political pull in the army and navy crops out at intervals in a way to evoke reflections.

But the refusal to recognize that the department of the public service on which the liberty and even the lives of the public depend should be kept out of the list of rewards of politics is one of the peculiar characteristics of this people. The necessity is most urgent in the case of police, as the revolting scandals that appear when the police get under political sway abundantly testify.

Yet when we examine the range of city service the same rule applies to all. The fire department has the safety of life and property under its guardianship. The sanitary service deals with their life and health. The accounting and contracting departments dispose of their business to a vast aggregate. No department of the municipal business that is worth paying for can be spared to the spoilsmen.

There is no more singular fatuity on the part of the American people than that which surrenders the management of their municipal business, closer to their daily lives than any other part of government, to the divisions of national politics.

THE PRESS DISCUSSES PARCELS POST BILL.

General Usefulness.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Perhaps the rates proposed in the senate bill are too high, but they can be lowered if after a trial the parcels post fulfills expectations as to its general usefulness."

Express Companies.

Birmingham Age-Herald: "Heretofore the express companies have succeeded in preventing the organization of a parcels post in this country, although all progressive countries have long used the system."

Foreign Nations.

Atlantic Constitution: "Parcels post conventions with foreign nations are proof positive that this service can satisfactorily and advantageously be furnished at home."

Business Management.

Facilities.

Philadelphia Inquirer: "It is the disgrace of the United States that ninety millions of people have been denied postal facilities that all other civilized peoples have."

"Postage Stamp Rate."

San Francisco Chronicle: "But there is no reason for adopting what is called the postage stamp rate to moving merchandise by passenger trains by the postoffice which is not an equally good reason for moving all merchandise by freight train at a low uniform rate."

THE NARROW SKIRT.

(Kansas City Times.)

The supremacy of the narrow skirt is challenged at last. Not vigorously as yet, you understand. But the experts on dress report on the distant horizon an occasional vision of a plaited skirt. For the present it is confined to soft materials. But it is bound to spread.

Skirts that for the last three years have required only from a yard and a half to two yards of material, under the regime of plaits will require at least four yards, with indefinite chances of expansion.

Presumably the feminine mind will see in this only an advance to unexplored possibilities in teh art of dress. Mere man, however, will suspect the hidden hand of the manufacturer, desirous of increasing his output—and the cost of living.

IS MADE GOOD BY STOLEN SERMON

Girl Took Preacher's Suitcase and is Converted by a Text.

THEN SENT IT BACK

Philadelphia, Aug. 23. The Rev. Dr. Hugh C. McBride of the Disston Memorial Presbyterian Church of Tacony was robbed of a suit case two weeks ago in a local department store while he was on his way to Atlantic City. He made no report of the loss until he appeared at the detective bureau with a letter signed, "A Heart Broken Young Woman" which reads:

"I read your beautiful sermon and was overcome with remorse. People have often told me that I had a good Christian mother, but that my father was a worthless man.

"I never had a chance to learn the difference between right and wrong, but when I read your sermon on the text: 'O Lord, please show me the right from wrong' I decided I did wrong in taking your suitcase.

"Your Atlantic City address was in the suit case, but when I took the bag to the express office they would not send it unless I prepaid the charges of $1. I did not have the money, so I took two of your razors and pawned them, for 50 cents and with the money paid the storage on the suti case at Ragan's Storage House, 1902 South College avenue.

"I am searching for work and when I get enough money I will get your suit case and send it to you. If you forgive me please insert an advertisement in the newspapers."

Detective O'Drain recovered the suit case. Dr. McBride said his sermon had not made any profound impression on his congregation. He would like to know the identity of the young woman so he could get her a position.

RUSSIAN EDITOR IS DEAD.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—The death occurred today of Alexis Suverin, editor and proprietor of the Novoe Vremya, at the age of 78.

OUR PRECISE ARTIST.

The Girl on the Courthouse Dome

To the Editor of The Sentinel: I know you will be surprised to get this letter from me, because I never wrote to you before. And I do hope you won't be mad at me. For fear you might, though, I want to explain how I happened to do it.

In the first place, I want to be sure that you know who I am. I am the Girl on the Court House Dome. No matter what my real name is—there's nothing in a name anyway. Well, when they first put me up here, at the time the court house was built, I thought I was going to have the time of my life. I had been so planned that the wind, blowing on the spread of draperies at my back, was supposed to turn me around like a weather vane; in fact, I was appointed to proclaim to the world the news of the wind. Well, I did whirl around all right for a while, and then, one day, I stuck fast, facing directly north. Well, sir, for many months and years I have stood there on one foot in the same position, seeing nothing but the landscape toward the north. The seasons came and went, but there I stayed and stared. A woman's curiosity has torn me almost to shreds, sometimes, when I did so want to see what was going on toward the east and south and west.

I remember the time the Aveline hotel burned. Just imagine yourself in my place. There I was, just across the street from the tragic scene, and it was so hot at times that I thought my draperies would scorch, and yet I had to look straight north and missed the whole thing. Maybe, though, it is just as well that I did, for I am sure the memory of that awful Sunday morning would have stayed with me for many a year.

I remember, also, the times when the windows on Calhoun street must have been filled with the beautiful creations for women's wear, and I have longed to look at them even though I suppose I shall never have need of them. I know one thing, and that is that the bobble skirt would never have touched me. I couldn't have gotten into one of 'em at all, because of the awkward position of my feet. I used to see the bobbles on the transfer corner, but gradually they went out of use as the women found them a handicap in running to catch the cars.

During all of last year, especially, I was very, very unhappy, because I couldn't look around at all, and I know I must have missed a good many interesting things.

And then came the great transformation!

One day last month I heard an unusual noise on the court house roof below, and I wondered what could have caused it. Pretty soon, as I turned my eyes downward—I can't move my head, you know—I saw a young man with a ladder climbing up to where I was. Oh, but I was glad to see him! He said his name was Jack—Steeple Jack—and that he had come up to find out why I was partial to the north—why I didn't seem interested in the other points of the compass. With tears in my eyes, I told him all about it, and he said: "Cheer up, little girl; I'll fix it all right." I am six times as tall as he is, but I tell you it sounded all right when he called me "little girl," and I don't blame the fluffy damsels over on the roof garden for snuggling up to their escorts there in the shadows if their beaux called them sweet names like Jack called me. Well, Jack was as good as his word, and when he had finished his work and climbed down onto the roof again, a breeze from the south whirled me around quicker'n scat—when lo, and behold! a grand new landscape broke forth. Why, I had never seen the Shoaff building or the new Old National bank block; I had never seen the People's Trust company building and I had never seen the elevated tracks. And then, a shift of the breeze showed me the new Anthony hotel—a church stood there when I saw the spot last—and, well, it was all so new and so lovely that I cried for joy—that was the day it rained so hard.

Well, Mr. Editor, I have told you how I feel. Do you think that anyone so full of happiness could help telling about it? And if I don't print my thoughts, how can anyone know them? Nobody gets near enough to me to let me speak to them, although, strange as it may seem, the voices of the people in the street and in the various stores and offices, float up to me so I hear them distinctly. And it is about these voices and about the things I see that I want to write to you. Will you let me send you some notes for publication sometimes? Not very often, maybe, but sometimes? Perhaps I see some things from away up here that can't be seen from away down where you are.

If you will let me do it, I would like to write to you, oh, so much! May I?

From
THE GIRL ON THE COURT HOUSE DOME.

P. S.—Last night I saw Harry Hogan and Guy Colerick standing looking at the big photographs of the national bull moose convention, on display in Colonel Foster's window, on Court street.

"I was just wondering," said Harry, "if Louie Litman would be a bull mooser at the present time if he had beaten Al Vesey for the republican district chairmanship."

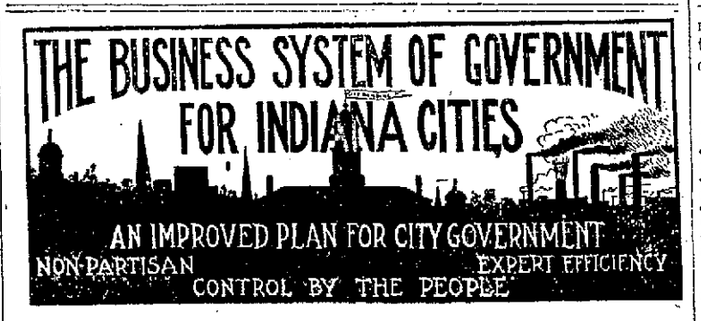
Guy said he didn't know, and, what's more, he didn't care.

I wish I knew more about politics. Of course, I don't know what Harry and Guy were talking about, but that's what I heard 'em say.

To the Girl on the Court House Dome:

Your nice letter, which was dropped by you off the court house roof and picked up by Dr. Emrick, who was going into the court house to get an estimate on his next year's dog tax, was delivered to us promptly. We have decided to let you write us a few communications, and if they are suitable, we will print them. But for goodness sake, make them short—a good deal shorter than this one. We realize that you haven't had a chance to talk for several years, but don't—please don't—try to make up for it all at once.

EDITOR OF THE SENTINEL.



THE BUSINESS SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT FOR INDIANA CITIES
AN IMPROVED PLAN FOR CITY GOVERNMENT
NON-PARTISAN
EXPERT EFFICIENCY
CONTROL BY THE PEOPLE

(By the Publicity Committee, Business System of Government State Organization.)

SERIAL NO. 13.

The Initiative.

In the business system of government for Indiana cities one of the vital features is the initiative. This is another measure by which the people may declare what their government shall be. The initiative is the complement of the referendum. It enables the people to obtain measures of government that they want, while the referendum arms them against measures that they do not want. Under the initiative the voters have the right and the means to take the law-making power into their own hands should government refuse to give them what they believe they need. The initiative is not a new principle of democratic action. The name and process only are of later origin. Through the machinery of the ballot is made practicable the most direct form of law-making, as when the people of a community came together in mass meeting on the village green to pass their laws and institute their measures of self-rule. Under the initiative law-making today becomes as literally the voice of the people as it was then in the old town meeting. In the business system of government the method of the initiative is this: If any city government refuses to pass such a law as the people want, 20 per cent. of the voters by petition can require that the proposed law be submitted to a vote. If a majority of the votes be in favor of the ordinance submitted, it thereupon becomes a legal and binding ordinance. While the petition is pending the board of councilors may, if it wills, pass the ordinance demanded and thus make an election unnecessary. If the people find they have been mistaken in the value of an ordinance procured by initiative they may later repeal it: but the government has no power to repeal or amend ordinances instituted by the initiative, though it may submit to popular vote at regular elections proposals to repeal or amend such ordinances. Not more than one special election for the initiative may be held in any year, but several ordinances may be submitted at one time, and such ordinances may be voted upon at any regular election.

MANKIND MASTERED
By a True Specialist

E. W. Moreland, M. D.

Whose Eureopean Methods Are Curing the Sick

Has had many years of experience in curing chronic diseases of mankind. Owing to my fine success, and desiring to increase my field of usefulness, I want every one afflicted to investigate my system of treatment, and invite, in particular, all who have been treated elsewhere without success, and all those whose cases have been abandoned by family physicians and so-called experts.

Caution:

Do not be misled—skilled, scientific treatments cannot be had at petty prices; cheap treatments to begin with mean your loss. Seek the best honest prices.

My Counsel Will Cost You Nothing

And my charges will not be more than you will be willing to pay for the benefit conferred: I will do by you as I would have you do by me, if our cases were reversed.

Certainty of Cure is What You Want

I can cite you to many of the best citizens of this city and surrounding country whom I have cured and made happy.

You Should Consult a Competent Physician

One in whom you may confide, one who makes chronic and obstinate diseases his study and practice, and who has the equipment of appliances and experience to render you the best service that professional skill in this twentieth century can furnish.

NERVOUS DISORDERS

Conditions brought on through misfortune, ignorance or overwork are nothing to be ashamed of; the disgrace attaches in allowing one's self to longer remain in them; it is also well to remember that

"An Evil Tree Cannot Bring Forth Good Fruit"

So an evil life, vicious habits and hereditary diseases cast their shadows before them and now, as in the days of David,

'A MAN'S SUCCESS DEPENDS UPON HIS STRENGTH AND VITALITY.

Diseases of the STOMACH, LIVER and KIDNEYS, HEART, BOWELS and RHEUMATISM receive my special consideration and are successfully treated.

I Cure to Stay Cured Varicose Veins, Blood Disorders, Skin Disorders, Bladder and Kidney Ailments, Piles, Fistula and all Special, Acute and Chronic Disorders of Men.

Blood Poison

My special treatment goes to the very bottom of this disease and forces out all impurities. The blood, the tissues, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to good condition.

I Cure Rupture Without an Operation

My methods will not inconvenience you or detain you from business. My methods are safe, certain and speedy. Years of practice and experience enable me to offer you a thorough course of treatments for any chronic or pelvic disease.

CONTRACTOR IS MISSING.

Believed That He is Lost in the Woods or Dead.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 24.—Moise de Leon, prominent Atlanta contractor and builder, is believed by his relatives here today to be either lost in the Michigan woods, or to have met a more tragic fate. Police in both Chicago and Michigan have been asked to search for him.

Nothing has been heard from de Leon since he left his brother's home in Chicago, August 9, saying that he was going to Saginaw, Mich., and from there into the northern woods for a fishing trip. He is said to have had considerable money with him.

E. W. de Leon, of Chicago, brother of the missing man and president of a casualty company, today notified relatives here that the Saginaw police had been unable to discover if the builder ever arrived there.

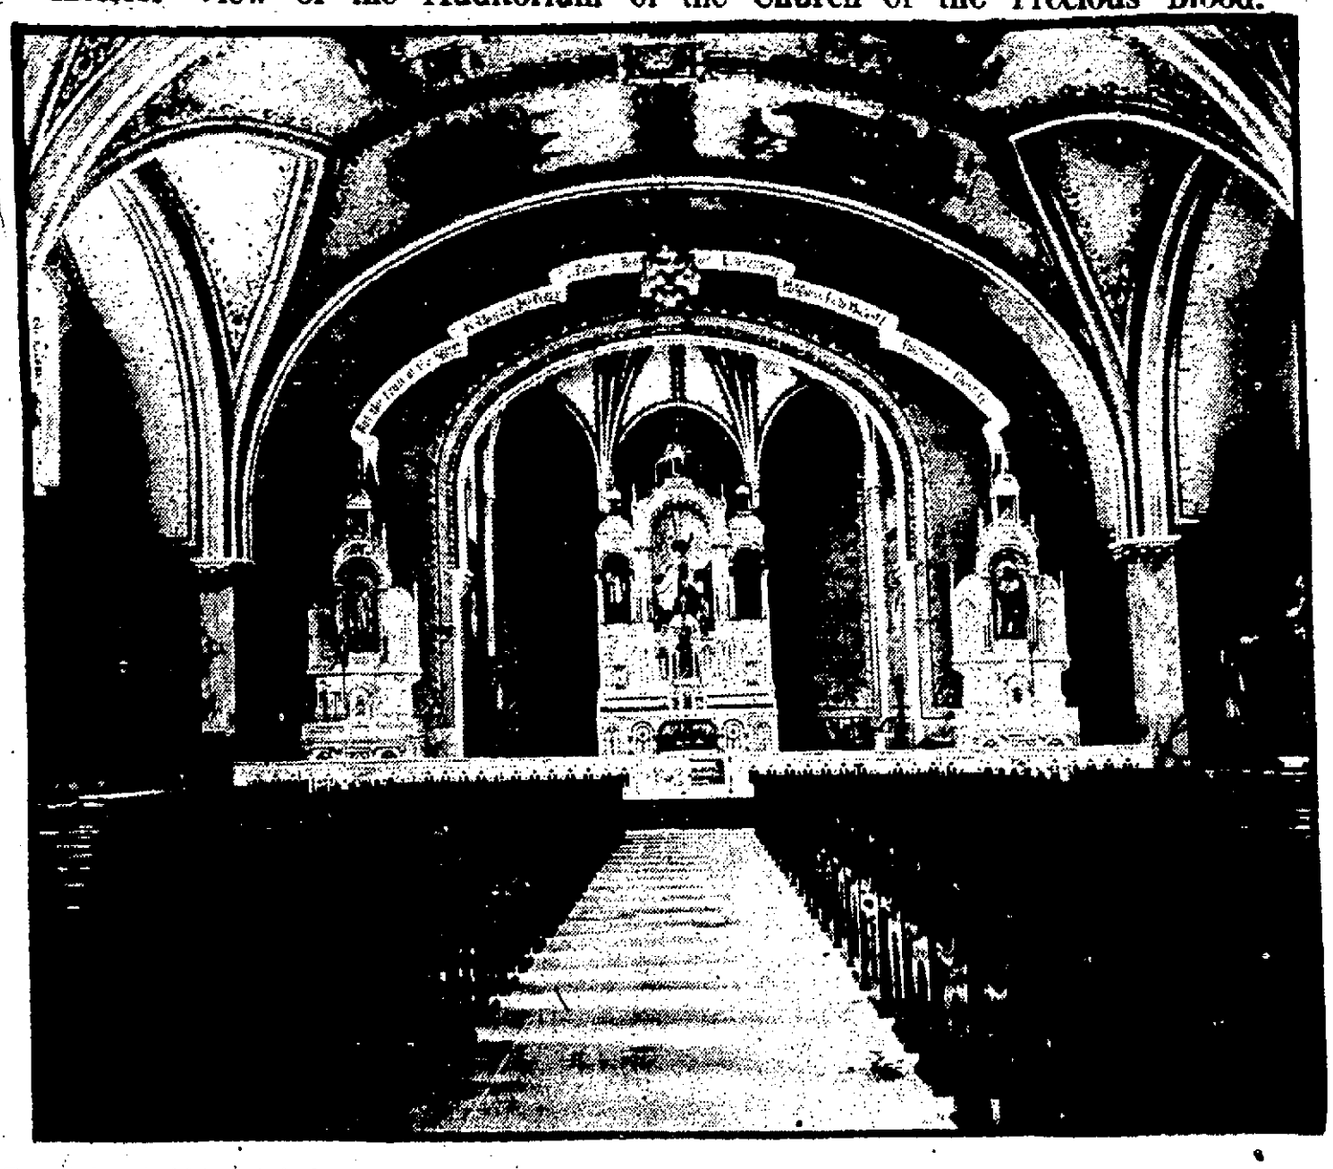
Interior View of the Auditorium of the Church of the Precious Blood.



The central event of interest in local Catholic circles tomorrow will be the dedication of the splendid new edifice of the Church of the Most Precious Blood in Bloomingdale, at the corner of Barthold and Fourth streets, recently completed at a cost of $50,000.

The dedication ceremonies occur at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and participating in them will be the various societies of the congregation. Rt. Rev. Herman J. Alerding, the bishop of the diocese, will officiate and conduct the blessing of the church and the solemn high mass following this ceremony.

Assisting the bishop in these ceremonies will be the Very Rev. J. H. Oechtering, rector of the St. Mary's church. The deacons will be Rev. George Hindelang, C. PP. S., of Celina, O., and the sub-deacon Rev. Mark Hamburger, C. PP. S., of Cincinnati. The master of ceremonies will be Rev. William C. Miller, secretary of the bishop. The dedicatory sermon will be preached by Rev. Joseph F. Delaney, pastor of the St. Patrick's church.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock Bishop Alerding will conduct confirmations and deliver an address. At the vespers there will be the benediction and the administration of the blessed sacrament.

Is Handsome Edifice.

It was just a year ago this month that the corner stone for the new edifice was laid, the interesting ceremonies being conducted by Bishop Alerding on Sunday, August 27, in the presence of a large congregation of people. Now the church is entirely completed both in regard to the exterior and interior arrangements.

Description of this magnificent new temple of worship has been given in the columns of the Sentinel. It is one of the finest in Fort Wayne, and one of the largest. It stands on the southeast corner of the parish square, fronting on Barthold street seventy-two feet and extending along Fourth street 165 feet.

The building is of the Renaissance style of architecture and constructed of brick with stone and ornamental copper trimmings, modern in all its details. The architects were Gault & Gault, of Terre Haute. The members of the building committee, trustees of the congregation, were Messrs. Robert Kelly, J. J. Brink, Joseph V. Litot, William Geary, Frank Koch, sr., Joseph Harkenrider, Frank Kroop, August Libbing, John Teeters, and Peter Schenkel.

REV. CHRISOSTOM HUMMER, Pastor of the Church of the Precious Blood.

The auditorium will seat 1,000 and has fine acoustic properties The interior decorations and the large stained glass windows, with the splendid altar arrangements and comfortable pews make it equal in those respects to any of the churches of the city.

The pipe organ used in the old church has been placed in the new edifice, and everything is in readiness for the dedicatory services tomorrow. All that remains to do is the sodding of the lawn in front and north of the church.

Pastor of the Parish.

In the preparation of the plans and the work for the new church edifice Rev. Chrysostom Hummer, the pastor of the parish, has been most active, giving both his earnest and valuable attention and much of his time to its building and the many minor details. In fact, with his pastoral duties he has been the busiest of men, and yet always and everywhere his parishioners found him attentive to his pastoral duties, always pleasant, always kind, and always attentive to their best welfare.

Father Hummer is a native of Luxemburg, Stearns county, Minnesota, and is now 46 years of age, having been nineteen years in service as a minister of the gospel. He was ordained as a priest on June 21, 1893, having pursued his studies at the St. Charles seminary at Carthagena, O. He taught school for a year at the St. Joseph normal school and from June of 1894 to September of 1896 was pastor of St. Michael's church at Kalida, O. He then became a professor in to St. John's college at Collegeville, remaining there until his tranfer to the pastorate in this city in January of 1903.

Few clergymen are better fitted for the holy calling in which they are engaged. He is a Bible scholar and a teacher, and able in expounding the scriptures. He combines with these qualities a personality that makes friends. He is zealous in his work and the parish owes much of its present prosperity to his faithful and indefatigable labors. Father Hummer is loved by his parishioners and the people generally.

Assisting him in his pastoral duties is Rev. Benjamin Alt, the assistant pastor, who came here a year ago from New Washington, O., entering on his duties early in September of last year. Father Alt has been in the ministry for two years, having been ordained at Carthegena, O. He is a talented young man and is doing efficient work in the parish.

History of the Parish.

The parish of the Church of the Most Precius Blood is now seventeen years old. It dates its history from the early part of the year 1895. The most reliable and best account of its history is that given in the book, 'The Diocese of Fort Wayne," which was written by the Rt. Rev. H. J. Alerding, the bishop of the diocese, and which is as follows:

"On February 12, 1895, Bishop Rademacher assigned the territory north of the St. Mary's river and to the New York, Chicago & St. Louis railway, and west of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway in and near the city of Fort Wayne, to the pastoral care of the Most Precious Blood. October 12, 1897, marks the beginning of the congregation. It was on that date Rev. Frank Nigsch entered upon the pastoral duties within the territory mentioned.

"On the northwest corner of Fourth and Barthold streets nine lots were bought for $2,500, and the additional purchase of the feeder of the old Wabash & Erie canal gave the church grounds the entire length on Fourth street, between Barthold and Andrew streets, and 250 feet north of Fourth street.

"About 135 families resided within the parish limits. Fifty-five of these had hitherto attended the Cathedral, forty-two St. Mary's and about thirty-eight the St. Paul's. A two-story brick building to serve the purpose of church and school, 50x111 feet and costing $9,045, was erected. The street, sewer and other improvements and the furnishings of the church, including an organ, necessitated an additional outlay of $6,783.98.

The Parish School.

"The school was opened on September 12, 1898, in charge of the Sisters of the Most Precious Blood, with an attendance of 160 children. The eight grades of a common school education are taught. The school society of the Most Precious Blood, organized in the same year, has the support of the school for its principal purposes.

"The same year the Fathers of the Most Precious Blood erected a missionary house, which serves as a pastoral residence. It fronts on Barthold street. An assembly hall, 30x80 feet, being a one-story brick structure, was erected in 1902, which with the necessary fixtures and stage, cost about $3,200.

"In 1898 the school society, the Rosary society, the Young Ladies' society and the society of the Holy Infancy were established, and in 1899 the Men's society and the Sodality of the Children of Mary, the total membership being 517. Besides these societies there are the C. B. L., the C. K. A. and the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent legion.

"Rev. Nigsch remained as pastor until January 19, 1903, when he was transfered to Ottawa, Ohio The Rev. Chrysostom Hummer, C. PP. S., has been pastor since January 1903.

The Contractors.

Those who had a part in the building of the new church, besides architects, were as follows:

Mason, Peter Schenkel; carpenters, John Hageman; sheet metal, roofing, etc., J. H. Welch & Son; plumbing, Leonard Stalf; frescoing, G. Gioscio, of Indianapolis; furniture, pews, altar, Lansberg & Macke, of Louisville; wiring C. F. McBride & Sons and G. W. Libbing; stations, etc., Martin Greven.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jefferies and the Misses Sadie and Marie Clark have started on a trip down the St. Lawrence river through Lakes George and Champlain and down the Hudson to New York. They will stop en route at Niagara, Toronto, Montreal, Lake George, Albany and New York. In Toronto the party will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Merrifield.

One of the most enjoyable affairs at Robison park this season was given last evening. The affair was a well-executed surprise on T. E Bailey, of the firm of Cleary & Bailey. Mr. Bailey was invited to go to the park and have supper with his wife, but on his arrival there he found a number of his friends and a table beautifully decorated with flowers. Of still more interest was the abundance of good things to eat. In the center of the table a large birthday cake with tiny candles burning on it told the story of the special occasion for which these friends of Mr. Bailey had gathered. Surprise did not prevent Mr. Bailey from enjoying the fine supper or the entertainment generally, and he agreed with his friends when they extended their congratulations and presented him with several gifts, that a birthday anniversary was often a most happy day. After the supper, for which covers were laid for twenty, the company repaired to the dance hall and enjoyed that amusement.

Billie Burke on the Grace of Drapery

(By Billie Burke.)

THE FIRST WORD—Modern dress must be made for modern needs.

The woman of today is an utilitarian animal before she is a thing of beauty, and her clothes must conform to her circumstances. The tailor-made gown worn by the business woman really has nothing to commend it, except that it is suitable, but, being that, it has a certain beauty of fitness which would not be found in the dainty frills of the society girl. Trig neatness has a modern charm of its own and the dress of the woman who works should always have that indispensable quality whether it be the clean print of the woman who is a nurse or does housework, or the up-to-date cloth skirt and linen shirtwaist of the woman in the office.

At home one's own artistic or individual taste and comfort in dress can be indulged and individual taste may have a certain fascination even if it is not artistically beautiful.

Of course, if one is married to a man who is very conventional in his ideas of woman's dress, it goes without saying that one may never be seen other than tightly corseted and dressed. But being the arbiter of one's own body as well as soul—and this is what every woman strives to be—it certainly makes life more joyous to indulge in fancies once in a while.

In the strenuous life of today, whether the woman be in business or society, the corset is a necessity. One cannot wear a girdle at what is called the normal place without a corset. Why the "normal" waistline should be just above the hips of the modern woman is unexplainable. The ceinture or girdle was first used to confine the bust; now, when we wear our girdles there, it is called the "raised waistline."

Very few women of individual ideas in gowning wear corsets in the privacy of their own homes: If they are stout, especially-made girdles or waists usually are substituted, but the gowns hang more or less free from the shoulders and fall into the lines of the figure.

It is mock modesty which resents the revealment of the beautiful lines of the human figure through a clinging garment. There is nothing more pleasing than the suggestion of long lines and soft curves seen through the folds of such drapery. The Greeks, who worshipped beauty, knew this, and consequently no people yet have compared with them in loveliness and grace.

To neglect the body, to call it unclean, is to reveal a purirent mind. Upon its care rests all we know of a long, joyous life.

Most thinking women have come to realize this, and while they know that it is impossible to controvert the vulgarity of the ignorant, they indulge their artistic and beauty-loving taste in their gowning to its fullest in their homes.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in her home, always dons robes made of heavy oriental fabrics, banded about the waist with the fringed sashes of the Nautch girl. Mrs. Wilcox is a colorless little woman, with pale hair and eyes and faintly tinted complexion, and one hardly would think that her taste would run to the somewhat barbaric colorings of the oriental. Yet, evidently, this woman writer suits her house gown to her temperament.

Gertrude Atherton always wears a Chinese mandarin coat over a silk petticoat. Such a garment is much affected by women of individual taste: in fact, all those who once don one of these gorgeous oriental robes wish that there might be a national dress instead of an ever-changing fashion.

Mary Garden finally dons a yellow crepe garment over fleshings. Never a petticoat mars the symmetry of her form in the privacy of her own home. Miss Garden's house dresses are always of more or less diaphanous material, and they are made to trail over the carpet in long, sinuous folds which drape themselves about her bare, sandaled feet.

I have often wished that American women would adopt the Spanish fashion of draping one's head instead of wearing hats.

THE LAST WORD—There is nothing more exquisitely feminine than graceful draping.

How to be Beautiful

By BERTON BRALEY

(As Explained by the Beauty Doctors.)

Each morning, when you first awake,
  Massage your face and head.
Roll over fifty times and take
  A dozen eggs in bed;
And after that, before you dress,
  Run swiftly round the room
About two hundred times, no less—
  (This keeps one's youthful bloom.)

Use seven kinds of vaseline
  And eighteen sorts of paste
To keep the epidermis clean
  And help reduce the waist.
Drink orange juice and lemonade
  From dawn to late at night.
The while a masseuse and maid
  Are all the while in sight.

Relax at least ten hours a day,
  And exercise for ten.
Sleep eight hours—that much anyway—
  Then exercise again.
Don't read—it wrinkles up the eyes;
  Don't eat—it makes you fat;
Don't laugh—all beauty hints advise
  Decidedly on that.

There are a dozen other tasks
  That one must always do,
Like wearing rubber beauty masks
  And rubber corsets, too.
No single minute can you spare
  For friends or love, maybe;
But, oh, consider, lady fair,
  How beautiful you'll be!

STAINS

PAINT SPOTS ON CLOTHING.

PAINT can be removed from delicate fabrics, even when the spots have dried into the stuff. Apply benzine freely; leave on an hour, and renew. Sponge the blur which is left after the paint has peeled off, with pure alcohol.

2. Soak paint until soft by pressing on the spots a sponge wet with alcohol. When soft scrape off. Sponge the blur that remains with equal parts of ether and alcohol.

3. Equal parts of ammonia and spirits of turpentine will take paint out of clothing. Saturate the spots two or three times and then wash out in soap suds.

4. Calicoes or other cotton goods that have made too close an acquaintance with fresh paint may be cleaned by rubbing thoroughly with butter. If thrown aside then until wash day and then washed out as usual, the daub will have disappeared. The same remedy will be effective even if the paint has been on the goods a week.

SHIELD'S

PRESIDENT WILL ATTEND MEETING

Mrs. Pennybacker and Other Noted Speakers Are on Local Program.

TO BE BUSY SESSION

Of the prominent people who are to address the Indiana State Federation of Clubs during its meeting in Fort Wayne October 23 to 26, inclusive, will be the newly elected president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, of Austin, Tex.; Charles A. Greathouse, superintendent of public instruction; Mrs. Albion Fellows Bacon, whose work in the child labor movement is known all over the state; Hon. Albert J. Beveridge, Miss Charity Dye and a number of well known club women.

Mrs. Felix McWhirter, of Indianapolis, president of the federation, called a meeting of members of the state board at the Claypool hotel this week. Mrs. C. M. Dawson, president of the Woman's League and general chairman of the program for the convention of the state organization, was present at the meeting and returned home more enthusiastic, if possible, than before she went about things it is expected the women will accomplish at the federation meeting.

Indiana club women are greatly interested in a number of bills that will come up before the next meeting of the state legislature. Some of these bills are about matters that women of the state have been urging for some time. The child labor bill, for example, the housing bill, one for memorial building, while topics of such vital interest as the conservation of forests and waterways, the need of a state library school, the moral education of the child and social hygiene are topics that are to be discussed by well known speakers of Indiana during the convention.

At the meeting of the state board held on Thursday the subject of the program engrossed the entire attention of the women, who, in addition to Mrs. McWhirter and Mrs. Dawson, are Mrs. Johnston, of Richmond; Mrs. Newsem, of Columbus; Mrs. Markle, of Winchester; Mrs. Cox, of Terre Haute; Mrs. Roebock, of Wabash, and Mrs. Earl, of Connersville. It was stated that there would be too much work to be accomplished for much in the way of entertainment from a social standpoint. The Woman's League, however, will hold a large reception on the opening evening in order that Fort Wayne people may meet the visitors. There will be short musical programs at several of the sessions and the best musical organizations of the city will assist in entertaining the visitors.

The headquarters of the convention will be the Anthony hotel and day sessions will be held in the ballroom. Evening meetings of the federation will be held at the First Presbyterian church. The program is by no means all arranged as yet, but it is planned to have in connecton with the opening exercises on the first evening of the convention a short musical program, a visit to the Scottish Rite cathedral and a reception to be held in Minuet hall.

While in Indianapolis Mrs. Dawson met Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, who suggested that the women of Fort Wayne take active part in the forestry movement, and that they furthermore urge the forming of similar societies in the Twelfth district to promote interest in this matter which affects indirectly every citizen of Indiana. Mrs. Dawson states that the civic department of the Woman's League, of which Mrs. Samuel R. Taylor is the chairman, will begin work at once.

AS A WOMAN THINKS.

If you are "too good," be sure you are not good enough.

Be glad of criticism. If you escape it you are not worth considering.

Propinquity spells affinity for most men.

Why waste a minute of today looking for the hour you lost yesterday?

If divorce was not invented by the devil he certainly has made many infringements on the patent.

A woman is adorable sometimes, lovable frequently, changeable often, dangerous always.

PAID DOLLAR TO BE SURE.

Indianapolis, Aug. 24.—Because he could no longer endure the guilty conscience of having knowingly failed to pay his fare on a trip taken over the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad between Indianapolis and North Salem, Ind., eighteen years ago, a man whose identity has been withheld walked into the office of R. B. White, superintendent of the road, yesterday and found relief in the payment of the debt.

Rate sheets of eighteen years ago could not be found, but it was estimated the fare had been about 80 cents. In order to be certain that the obligation had been fully met the man deposited $1.

MAJESTIC THEATER

"WHERE THE TRAIL DIVIDES."

Opening Attraction at the Majestic for Five Nights and Two Matinees.

The selection of the cast for the production of a play is a hard and tedious task. Klimt & Gazzolo, who will present Robert Edeson's great Indian play, "Where the Trail Divides," at the Majestic theater for five nights the coming week, because of the fact that no character of the American stage is exactly like How Lander, the educated Sioux Indian, who is the central figure in the piece, had a hard time finding a man to play the part.

In the original production Robert Edeson, who is considered the greatest interpreter of Indian characters on the stage, played the part of How Lander. He wrote the play for his own use and he made the part a big one—one that would require a type—but when it came to selecting a man to follow him in the cast the task seemed an almost endless one.

Mr. George Klimt, who looks after the selection of the casts for the Klimt & Gazzolo attractions, searched for months for some one to play How Lander. He interviewed hundreds of players, but none of them seemed to suit. He was at his wit's end when someone suggested that he interview Mr. E. S. Ross.

Mr. Ross was sent for. He came to the office and Mr. Klimt saw him. He looked the part, but could he act? The rest of the company had been engaged for months and Mr. Klimt gave Mr. Ross the part and told him to report for rehearsals the next morning. Mr. Gazzolo saw the rehearsal and the partners put the stamp of approval on Mr. Ross and his action for the role of How Lander.

Mr. Edeson came to rehearse the company and he also liked Mr. Ross' work, and as a result he was engaged for the part. Mr. Edeson seemed especially impressed with Mr. Ross' looks and inquired as to his nationality.

"My mother was a French-Canadian and my father a part Sioux," said Mr. Ross, "and that is where I get the Indian countenance."

Here was the type that Klimt & Gazzolo had been searching for many months and Mr. Ross had only been acting natural when he was playing the part.

"AT SUNRISE."

The attraction at the Majestic theater next Friday and Saturday will be Darrell H. Lyall's sensational play, "At Sunrise." This play, although a military comedy drama, is one of the better kind, and minus "the bucket of blood." The story of the play is one of intense human interest, a story that appeals to every heart. The comedy is of that bright, snappy kind that makes one forget their troubles.

"THE SPRING MAID."

With the endorsement of all principal capitals of Europe and with the enthusiastic praise of all music-lovers in nearly every city of the United States and Canada, "The Spring Maid," most joyous of all the recent Viennese operettas, comes to this city on Saturday, Sept. 7.

This will be the first opportunity local theater-goers have had to see Miss Gene Lunoska, the captivating Russian prima donna, as Princess Bozona, the saucy little heroine of the operetta. This charming singer captured the hearts of thousands in the same role last season. Indeed, Miss Lunoska has proven so popular in "The Spring Maid" that her managers are now looking for an opera to star her in next season.

Messrs Werba & Luescher will present this Viennese operetta here, fresh from its many triumphs. Its wealth of scenic beauty, lilting music and delightful comedy can never lose their charm. It will be interpreted by an excellent cast with the gifted Gene Lunoska in the stellar role, and J. H. Goldsworthy, the noted English baritone, in the same role of the flirtatious prince, which he played last season. There will also be the famous "Spring Maid" chorus and ballet and a splendid metropolitan orchestra, carried by the company.

HUNTS FOR GOLD OLD PIRATE LEFT

MAKES NEW MACHINE

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—The hidden chests of pirates' gold and bandits' buried treasure, such as every one has dreamed of finding, is found usually by some accident, when it is found at all, as in the case of the $10,000 which a farm hand recently found on the ranch owned by C. E. Yancy, of Liberty, Mo.

But hunting buried treasure may be done scientifically, and is said to be a real sport as compared with fishing or hunting.

Hunting for buried treasure is one of the hobbies of Bert Haldeman, superintendent of the fire alarm system. Haldeman, after long experiments, perfected an electrical instrument, consisting of a series of coils, so delicately adjusted that the presence of any metal within the radius of a few feet—even so small a piece as the metal tips of a shoe string—will affect it.

"I have had some mighty good sport hunting for buried treasure," said Heldeman, after showing a visitor the machine, which he keeps in a barn in the south side of town. "It's a very exciting game.

"One recent trip I made was out to Blue Ridge in search of a pot of guerrilla gld. I met an old man who had been a member of the Jesse James gang, and through him learned that at the time of the Lawrence raid his band had been forced to bury a kettle of gold on a hillside, the general location of which he remembered distinctly.

"Well, a party of us went out and combed the ground all over the hillside with the machine. Finally I got a strong indication of metal. Then the excitement began.

"We started digging, and three feet down we came to the kettle—but without the gold. We dug out a hole as big as a cellar, but it was no use—someone had been there ahead of us. But it was great sport, even if we did lose. When you get a 'bite' it gives you a greater thrill than the strike of any bass.

"I am going to make another hunt before long on a farm near Iola, Kan. A farmer's wife in raking over some soil which had been dug up from beneath their chicken coop and put on the garden for fertilizer, found a dollar caught between the teeth of her rake, and after a close search, found altogether $150.

"They have an idea that more treasure is buried thereabouts and they want me to try to locate it.

"Of course, there are plenty of big treasures that always are being sought. An expedition now is on the way to the Island of Cocos, off Costa Rica, headed by a man from Calgary, Canada, who believes he has the real secret of the $30,000,000 dollars hidden generations ago by an old sailor named Captain Traven. And my instrument has been used in a similar search for the gold of the pirate, Gasparilla, which is believed to be buried on Gasparilla Island, off the coast of Florida.

"Of course," added Haldeman, "the hunting of buried treasure part of it is all speculation and merely adds excitement. My greatest interest has been in experimenting and perfecting the sensitive piece of apparatus."

HOW THE BUSY ANT GETS HOME

Cornell Investigates Interesting and New Scientific Problem.

WOMAN IS ON THE JOB

Ithaca, N. Y., August 24.—The psychological processes by which the ant always manages to find its way back to its home, no matter how far away it has wandered, are the subject of a hundred or more experiments being conducted in the summer school psychological labratories at Cornell university. The scientists who are coducting the investigation call it an attempt to find out the "spatial orientation" of the ant. Translated, this means "how they find their way home."

The investigation was originated by Prof. Bentley, of Cornell. He is being assisted in the experiments by Miss Margaret Otis, a former professor at Wells college, who recently was awarded a fellowship at Cornell.

About 100 ants, representing several species, are being used in the experiments. A few of them are white. Most of them were obtained by Miss Otis from the stumps of trees and decayed logs, their natural habitat.

She Uses Revolving Light.

The tests are being made in a dark room, the apparatus consisting of a revolving light which may be played from any angle on the insects under observation. Just at present Miss Otis is using an arc lamp to determine its effect on the ant. So far she has been able to reach the conclusion that the ants, or the particular kinds with which she has been working, do not have the north, east, south and west sense of direction, such as is observed in carrier pigeons, for instance.

The sense of smell has proved of value in these tests. Miss Otis has used a large circular pan of water, in which there are two small islands connected by a bridge. A queen ant with her little ones is placed in the nest on one of the islands. After they have become acqualnted with their new home the baby ants are transferred to the other island by way of the bridge. The queen or mother ant then begins carrying them one by one back to their home.

First Trip the Hardest.

The mother at first has a hard time finding the bridge. She circles the island a number of times. Her first trip across is made in a hesitating fashion. After she has brought one of the babies back the trips are made more quickly and much more confidence is shown. This, it is thought, seems to prove that the ants have an excellent sense of smell. Miss Otis has timed the queen ant, and the best record so far is nine seconds. This was made on her last trip, when her path was well worn and she could follow the track easily.

The direct rays of light have a marked influence in the queen ant. She is able to make much better time when the light plays on her horizontally than when it is directly overhead.

All Boys and Girls in Fort Wayne Invited to Robison Park On Wednesday, August 28th. Free Rides Both Ways With Transfers Going Home.

Every boy and girl in Fort Wayne is invited to the Last Vacation Romp at Robison Park on Wednesday, August 28th. Just go to the Court House corner and board any park car. Every boy and girl will be given transfers, so no one need walk home after a hard day's play at the park. You can go any time from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m., and return any time between 3 p. m. and 11 p. m. Now read closely, little friends: The big Spiral Tower performance will take place at 3:30. That will be a magnificent spectacle in itself. The prizes will be awarded between 4 and 5 p. m. The big doll, Gloria's sister, and the miniature house will be given away. There will be forty-two presents in the letter-writing contest; twenty-one for boys and twenty-one for girls. The first prize for the best letter written by a girl will be a diamond ring. The first prize for the best boy's letter will also be a diamond ring, suitable for a boy. Twenty scarf pins of Pompeiian designs will be given to the next best twenty boys' letters, while twenty solid gold set rings will be given to the girlies. Try to tell Mr. Williams in your letters about the sports and games and things you like best, so he will know how to entertain you next summer. There will be 5,000 delicious butter scotch candy suckers for August 28th, just like the 2,000 Mr. Williams gave you on Boys' day; this will make a big butter scotch feast. The greased pole will have a prize at its summit for the best climber. The Spiral Tower exhibition will be repeated at 8:30 p. m. with fireworks, and you are all invited to remain and see it again. Mr. Williams invites all his boy and girl friends to attend this Last Vacation Romp. Mr. Greenland, of the traction company, has generously offered the street cars for the Fort Wayne children, so that you can go to the park without expense. Now, all come out and have a good time, as the school bells will soon be ringing.

DENVER POLICE TO USE FISTS?

Clubs a Relic of Barbarism, George Creel, Police Commissioner, Decides.

Denver, Aug. 24.—The Denver police force are to be deprived of their clubs. George Creel, magazine writer, editor and reform police commissioner of Denver, declares that clubs are a relic of barbarism used by the police principally for beating up defenseless prisoners and of no service in defending a police from a real attack. Therefore clubs will be called in tomorrow.

Creel's order follows the arrest of an I. W. W. speaker here. After bejng committed to jail the man wrote to Creel, complaining that he had been beaten up in the patrol wagon because he told a policeman that he "was no gentleman" and that he had been given no opportunity to defend himself when committed to jail. Creel paid the man's fine and obtained his release.

Creel, a former Kansas Citian, in an official letter to the mayor replied to charges that the police use their revolvers too freely by stating that "the reason so many fugitives are fired at is because the officers are too fat to give chase." He ordered that every man on the force be measured and that all exceeding a certain girth are to be dismissed.

Naval Base in South Seas; Princess Wins as Statesman.

The establishment of a naval station at Papeete, Tahiti, by the French government in the near future and the rapid development of the rich isles of the South Seas will be due to the efforts of Princess Pomera, a Tahitian.

Four years ago the princess went to Europe, and, although it was known that she spent a lot of time in France, it was generally supposed the mission was merely one of pleasure.

Princess Pomera had not forgotten, however, the existence of her numerous possessions in the South Seas. Amid the luxurious tropical growth there were thousands of cocoanut trees. The property is capable of great development, and the princess, without taking another soul into her confidence, proceeded to plan for a development of the French colonies with an enthusiasm that soon dispensed with the usual red tape of governments.

The opportunities afforded the mother country to make her possessions something of profit appealed strongly to France.

Engineers were appointed to make the investigation, while the princess packed her trunks and hastened across the land and seas to her domain of coral reefs and copra.

When the engineers arrived at Tahiti they found that every arrangement had been made for the work in hand. Princess Pomera had everything ready for the experts. This included a stanch little schooner, which was used in cruising about the islands.

GIVE PROPER CARE TO THE HAIR AND YOU WILL NEVER NEED A WIG

HERPICIDE

The man who wears a toupee does not like it, but has the courage of his convictions.

Nature never intended that the top of the head should be left entirely without protection. A bald head is very susceptible to contraction of colds and neuralgia. Wearing an artificial top piece counteracts this tendency, and, aside from the improvement in the personal appearance, is amply justified.

How much better it would have been had the man, now chronically bald and wearing a toupee, but realized earlier in life the approaching danger and devoted a little regular attention to his hair, which would have saved it.

There is a remedy which will absolutely prevent baldness. Loss of hair in nine cases out of ten is unnecessary, being due to dandruff and the germ that causes it. This germ must be destroyed and the accumulations of dandruff checked. Then the hair will not fall out, but instead will grow naturally and luxuriantly.

Newbro's Herpicide is the remedy; regular applications of which will do this. It has long been known as the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ and is absolutely dependable.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Herpicide applications may always be obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Anyone desiring to try Newbro's Herpicide before purchasing a large bottle will receive a nice sample and booklet by sending 10 in postage or silver to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich. Bradley Bros., Special Agents.

BASEBALL ATHLETICS

WILD PITCH DID LOT OF DAMAGE

Spoiled a Squeeze and Sent Game to Overtime and It Was Lost.

TWELVE ROUND GAME

Most wild pitches are disastrous to the pitchers who let go of them but Oscar Graham can credit his dozen-inning victory over the Billikens in the opening conflict of the final series to the fact that a ball he pitched Harry Martin in the eighth inning that was so far outside of the west side of the plate that the batter couldn't reach it.

Ed Rogers had reached third and one man was down. A squeeze play was tipped and the runner was off with the pitch but Martin could not reach the ball without stepping across the plate and the attempt looked foolish to people who didn't stop to think.

Martin had been up three times in the game and Graham had kept him from hitting. He is a good bunter and his best play was the one he made in spite of the fact that he cracked a single over second after Rogers had been retired. It was just one more of these little attempts at run getting that go wrong and it probably lost the game for Fort Wayne.

There was another sad and unusual mishap in the ninth. With two down and two on Steinbrenner popped a high fly in front of the plate and Martin had plenty of time to get hold of it but he muffed it and filled the bases. Martin is reliable on foul balls and everybody thought the game was over when he got under the fly.

This little bit of discouragement upset Charley Alberts and he issued a base on balls, forcing over the tieing run and sending the matinee to overtime. Anderson was chased from the game and eventually out of the scorer's box where he took refuge.

Gray, for the visitors, closed the game with a double play that nipped a pretty good start Fort Wayne had in the way of run getting. Bill Schneider was sent in to bat for Goldrick and he picked off a nice single. Blount advanced him with a bunt and Vandagrift shunted one over short that looked like a sure single but Willie Gray went up in the air and stabbed and doubled Schneider off second.

Ed Rodgers and Curly Blount saved the day in the seventh when Alberts was weakening fast. Rogers made a stab of a fly that was tagged for the fence and would have yielded at least a couple of bases and Blount raced over to deep right center and nabbed another of the same variety.

Kubat was sent out to warm up after Goldrick was taken out to let Schneider bat for him, but he didn't get a chance as the rally started by the extra base hit top didn't get far enough to make his services necessary.

CLOSE AT COLUMBUS.

Fort Wayne and Akron to Play Final Series on A. A. Grounds.

President Bobby Quinn has secured the consent of the Central league to close the season at Columbus, O., on the American association park and Akron and Fort Wayne will transfer the games of Sunday and Monday, September 1 and 2.

It will be centennial week at Columbus and as Akron has not been drawing well it is believed better crowds can be secured by the transfer. Owner Claude H. Varnell gave his consent today to the plan and it will be put through.

THOUSANDS TURN OUT FOR PARADE

BROUGHT BACK FLAGS

New York, Aug. 24.—New York tendered full and enthusiastic honors today to the American athletes who returned from abroad bearing the honors of the Olympic games at Stockholm, Sweden.

The American winners of the Olympic were escorted in a monster parade through Fifth avenue and Broadway to the city hall, where the athletes were welcomed and the parade reviewed by Mayor Gaynor and the reception committee.

Thousands of persons along the line of March cheered the athletes who occupied automobiles in the parade. Each car carried two athletes and there was a large sign on the front of the machines giving the names of the occupants. Many of the Olympic team members reached here early today from various parts of the country.

Led by a detachment of mounted police, the ten thousand or more paraders, made up in ten divisions, moved down Fifth avenue from Forty-first street. A battalion of coast artillery commanded by Brigadier General George F. Dyer, led the troopers who formed the first division of the parade. The second division consisted of Spanish war veterans and boy scouts, while the third division was headed by an automobile containing members of the Olympic committee, followed by the citizens' committee, the school children's guard of honor, the American Olympic team and the Swedish societies. Other divisions of the parade included former champions and athletes of the American Athletic union, the Y. M. C. A. and numbers of other athletic clubs, together with members of the New York and Chicago teams of the American league.

Fluttering from a float preceding the automobiles bearing the Olympic winners were three American flags which were used to announce the victories of the Americans in the stadium.

WHITE SOX WANT TO PLAY.

Anxious for Series to Settle the Championship of the City.

The White Sox want to play games at the close of the season against the Shamrocks and other semi-pro teams of the city to decide the championship and base the claim on the ground that they have met and defeated Antwerp, Paulding and Garrett of the Trolley league.

The Sox will leave at 1 o'clock tomorrow over the interurban for Decatur. The line up: Geller lf; L. McKee, 2b; Smithers, 3b; Frosh, ss; A. McKee, cf; Humbreth, 1b; Blauvelt, rf; Harmeyer, catcher; Lenz and Fink, pitchers.

Smashing Cures Mashing, Says Ethel Intropodi; See Her Learning How from Noted English Boxer.

By ETHEL INTRAPODI.

I am not a suffragette, nor even a suffragist, but I do believe that a woman should be able to protect herself from that breed of brutes commonly known as mashers. These insufferable beings masquerading in the form of man have been on the increase and there seems to be an epidemic of the craze, or disease, or whatever you may call it.

Your clinging vine of a woman naturally runs away screaming, to a policeman, if she is so lucky as to find one. Her nerves get a terrible wrench and she may be laid up for days.

But your girl of spunk and independence is able to take care of herself. If she can land a stinging blow behind the ear on one of these mashers, she is safe. If she can deliver a strong upper cut, or land a solar plexus blow, she can walk the streets unmolested and unafraid.

Some years ago I came to the conclusion that I would train so that I could protect myself from insult. I took lessons in boxing, and I learned a few tricks that have stood me in good stead.

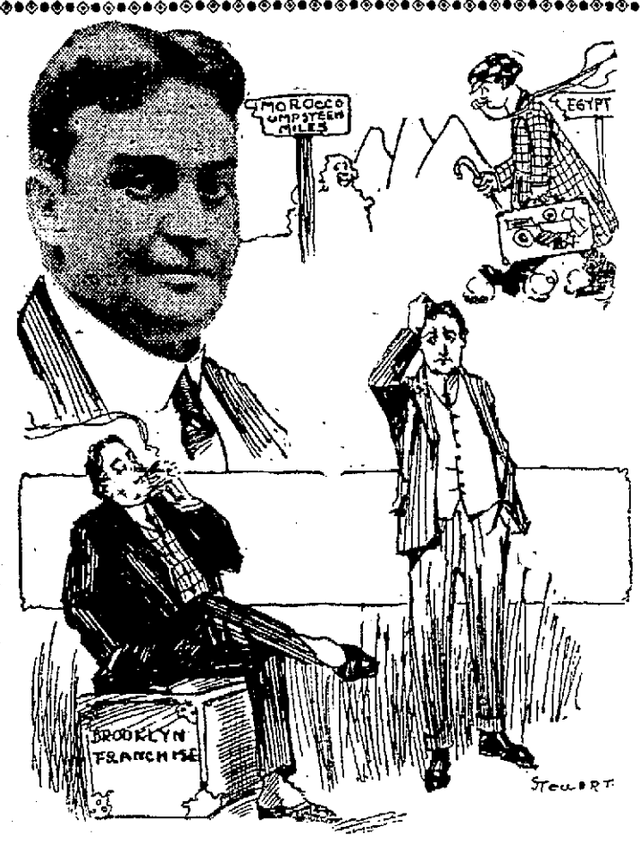
Lately, I found that mashing was again the craze, and I determined to revive my boxing prowess. While in Chicago I learned that Jimmy Walsh, the flyweight champion of England, was in town. I looked him up and took some lessons from him that I fancy will be of much assistance to me.

An actress is particularly at the mercy of the masher. In the first place, he considers her his legitimate prey. In the second place, she is often compelled to go from theater to hotel, alone and unprotected.

In my opinion, an upper cut, landed squarely on the jaw of a masher, is one of the most effective ways of curing him. In this way, a person avoids the publicity that always follows the arrest of one of these creatures, and again, one feels safe on the streets, and that is a great deal to a woman who has to make her way in the world. I feel sure that if every business woman would take up boxing she would find that she saved herself a great deal of annoyance. The exercise is healthful and invigorating, and it gives a woman a feeling of power that is exhilarating.

When women take up boxing the masher will be a thing of the past. He will slink away like the coward that he is. A jab in the jaw will eliminate him entirely and he will be as rare as the dodo bird.

Millionaire Eddie Wilbern, Weary of Globe-Trotting Wants Brooklyn Ball Team to Amuse Himself.



WILBERN DREAMS OF PUTTING OUT A WINNER.

If there is one fan in this world who is just a little more enthusiastic over baseball than the other 80,000,000 or so, that fan is Eddie Wilbern, of Cincinnati.

For the last few years Wilbern has been dividing his time between globe trotting in the winter and watching baseball in the summer.

Now he is trying to break into the game as an owner. He is using his most convincing arguments on Charles D. Ebbetts, in the hope of inducing the Brooklyn owner to dispose of his club about the time that new million dollar ball lot in Brooklyn will be ready in September.

The fact that Brooklyn has been a consistent and persistent loser ever since the halcyon days of Ned Hanlon doesn't disturb Wilbern. He declares that the offer he will make for the Brooklyn franchise will be such that Ebbetts can't afford to turn it down.

Wilbern once before tried to break into baseball. A few years ago he organized all-star teams from the National and American leagues which he proposed to take on a winter tour around the world. It wasn't a hard matter to sign the players, especially since certified checks ranging in size from $1,000 to $10,000 were freely distributed among the ball tossers. When everything began to look rosy the national commission, the supreme court of baseball, stepped in and put the "kibosh" on the proceedings.

Wilbern had an awful time to get back those certified checks, but even that experience with ball players failed to cure him of the fever.

Wilbern likes nothing if not activity. Less than twenty years ago he went to Cincinnati penniless and took a job stripping tobacco at $6 a week. In five years he had made enough money to start a company of his own, and in five years more he was putting out such a good quality of "scrap" that the tobacco trust was willing to pay him the modest sum of $1,000,000 for his holdings.

He has an idea that owning and running a major league ball club will be a whole lot more exciting than the prosaic work of throwing the hooks into a mammoth trust, so that it's baseball for Wilbern from this time on, provided, of course, that Ebbetts or some other major league mogul can be induced to sell his holdings. But owners of big league ball clubs do not have to peddle their franchises. They are pretty valuable, even with a losing club, while the "gink" that happens to put over a winner—well it takes him all of next winter to count his money.

Wilbern, however, has such a faculty of doing things that it would not be surprising to see him not only succeed in purchasing the club, but also make good in his effort to put out a winner right off the reel, much after the fashion of Charles Webb Murphy, when he broke into baseball.

NEWS OF THE SENECAS.

The Senecas will leave at 3 o'clock over the G. R. & I. tomorrow for Sturgis, Mich., where they will play the Eagles. The Eagles have only been defeated once this year and that was by the Senecas.

Either Rainey or May will pitch against Sturgis.

Chick Carr will be out of the game the rest of the season on account of a broken ankle. Tagtmeyer will play the short field.

Centilivre, Miller and Wiekart are taking care of the outfield in good style and are all hitting well.

MAY GET CY YOUNG.

Youngstown, O., August 24.—Paul Powers stated this morning that he was trying to get in touch with Cy. Young, the veteran big league hurler, to engage him to umpire the benefit ball game between the Steelmen and a picked local club, which will be played at Wright Field, September 3, for the benefit of the Visiting Nurses association. There is little doubt but that Young's services will be obtained.

T. & C. LEAGUE NOTES.

Trolley league games booked for tomorrow afternoon are: Antwerp at Auburn, Paulding at Hicksville, Huntington at Kendallville.

The Shamrocks will not play a league game Sunday, having been scheduled up with Woodburn before the formation of the semi-pro league. And its a good guess that the village will turn out some crowd to see the prides of Bob Shirley's town hook up with the Shamrocks.

After tomorrow's game the Shamrocks will be at home the rest of the season, meeting Trolley league clubs at League park on Labor Day and on every Sunday in September.

GALLIA TO SENATORS.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 24.—Melvin Gallia, star pitcher of the Kansas City American association baseball club, was traded to the Washington American team last night for Pitcher Vaughn and Clarence Walker, an outfielder. Gallia will join the Washington club at once. He came to Kansas City this season from the Texas league.

BILLIKENS WILL MAKE FINAL BOW

Wheeling Will Close Season and Field Day Events Will Be Added.

MADE A GAME FIGHT

In the game at League park tomorrow afternoon the Billikens will make their farewell bow of the season and if they win the pennant in the Central league they will have to capture it on foreign fields and Fort Wayne patrons will not have an opportunity to rejoice with them in taking a flag that Claude H. Varnell has labored for for five years.

Wheeling has one of the hardest teams in the league to beat and it will give the best of them a lot of trouble before the curtain is rung down. It is a bit unfortunate that the Stogies have no more games with Erie and Youngstown, as they would probably be of as great aid to Fort Wayne against the contenders for the pennant as the local club itself, because Manager Anderson and his band of youngsters never quit until the last man is down.

Win or lose the club has made a game struggle and all the local pride in baseball is due for a demonstration, as the team is one of the best that has ever represented Fort Wayne. Manager Shaughnessy said early in the season that if his pitchers ever struck their gaits he would win. In the middle of the season Charley Alberts, Art Loudell and Billy Goldrick rounded into form in a day and the club made one of the most remarkable runs in the history of minor league ball in its sensational climb from eighth to first place.

George Harden was added to the staff and Roy Keener showed great form in the box and the club gave some excellent exhibitions and played the kind of ball that the true patrons of the game demand. This was due in a great measure to the fact that every man was in the game heart and soul, that all were earnest in their efforts to win and that no lack of discipline was allowed to interfere with their work, as they were all in condition and ready to give their best services when they were called on.

There is not another team in the Central league that would have been able to hold its own in the face of the pitching slump that characterized the closing contests of the year. When the staff was trimmed by distressing circumstances to three men every one of them worked willingly and worked hard to keep the club in the running. Owner Claude Varnell scoured the country for aid and stood willing to pay any reasonable price for a good man to help out but none was available and only the courage of the whole club has kept it in the scramble for the flag.

Fandom has been just as loyal as the players and the losses have not materially affected the attendance because the conditions have been known and fully appreciated. Arrangements are making for a record attendance at the close and the field day attractions that are to be put on are not for gain, as it will cost as much or more to put them on as the increased attendance will pay and the affair is simply a celebration of the good work of the season.

There will be plenty of entries on the field day program to make it attractive, and in order to begin the game on time the exercises will start at 1:30 o'clock. That the patrons will be there is practically certain. In a few days the season will be over and the figures will be compiled to show which is the best ball town in the league. Fort Wayne is the best up to this time but Erie and Youngstown both have several days to play and this will give both an advantage, but Mr. Varnell's confidence in Fort Wayne is unshaken and he hopes that when the last game has been played he can point to as good attendance as any of the other owners.

The honor of pitching the last game lies between Harden and Kubat. One is slated for the game this afternoon and the other will work in the closing combat.

THREE EVENTS THE OBSERVANCE OF WHICH RECALLS THE PROMINENCE OF THE GERMANS IN THE HISTORY OF FORT WAYNE

German Day to Be Celebrated by the United German Soceties, Annual Picnic of the Bruederlicher-Unterstuetzungs Verein, and Diamond Annversary of St. Paul Lutheran Congregation—Among Our Very First Settlers, the Geramns of Fort Wayne Now Lead in Population Figures and are prominent in Business, Philanthopic and Religious Activities.

Two events occurring within the next few weeks—German day, to be observed by the United German societies of Fort Wayne at Germania park tomorrow, and the great annual picnic to be held at the same place on September 8 by the Bruederlicher Unterstuetzungs Verein—with the observance on October 13 of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the organization in this city of the congregation of the St. Paul Lutheran church, will make timely and interesting, perhaps, what is here said about the Germans of Fort Wayne and the society mentioned above with such a fearfully long name—the Bruederlicher Unterstuetzungs Verein—to many an unpronounceable one, but to one who understands the German language as easily pronounced as its English translation, the Brotherly Relief society.

The Bruederlicher Unterstuetzungs Verein is one of the strongest societies in membership in Fort Wayne—and in the state of ndiana. It has 1,128 members in this city, the growth in the twenty-four years of its history from a charter membership of seven, only three of whom are now living.

Is Distinctively Lutheran.

The society was organized in March, 1888. The seven charter members were Chas. H. Buck, William Schmidt, M. F. Schmetzer, Frederick Schmiedes, Michael Nessel, Charles Kaiser and Christopher J. Matsch. The four last named are dead. The three first named are living, and they were the first officers of the association. M. F. Schmetzer was president; Chas. H. Buck, secretary, and William Schmidt, treasurer.

The present officers are: Henry E. Branning, president; Edward Schroeder, vice president; William C. Baade, recording secretary; Henry Guenther, financial secretary; Wm. E. Gerding, treasurer; Henry Schwartz, Henry Wehrenberg Theodore Siebold, trustees. Mr. Baade and Mr. Guenther have served in these offices for fourteen years. President Branning is now serving on his second term.

Mr. Buck, who was the first secretary, served in that position for many years and was also honored afterward by being elected president of the association.

The Bruederlicher Unterstuetzungs Verein is distinctively Lutheran. Its membership embraces entirely the members of that denomination, German and English, belonging to the churches of the Synod of Missouri, the men of the denomination only. Commencing with its seven charter members its purpose appealed to the Lutheran men and it grew rapidly, increasing with each passing year until it reached its present large number.

The English translation of its name will give to the reader the purpose of the society, which is the extension of the helping hand to its members in time of misfortune and need, particularly so in case of death. On the death of a member it pays to the widow or heirs the sum of $500, an assessment of $1 a member being made at each death when such an assessment is needed.

During the twenty-four years of its history the society has had about 150 deaths. It has never failed to respond immediately in the payment of death benefits to the family of the deceased, and in all cases where the members needed and were deserving of help financially that aid was extended. It is the good Samaritan in time of misfortune, sickness and death, and has the hearty support and endorsement of the Lutheran church, to which its membership belongs.

The regular meetings of the society are held monthly, meeting in Harmony hall, on West Berry street. Its officials hold office for a term of one year. The organization is in a splendid financial condition, having a large surplus fund placed out at secured investments.

While insurance is the principal purpose of the Bruderlicher Unterstuetzungs Verein, it has its social features, one of which is an annual picnic. The program for the one this year is yet in the hands of the committee. In a large measure it will be a social affair, a bringing together of the members. And there will be a large attendance. A parade will precede the leaving for the park. This will start from the society hall, headed by one of the city's bands.

WILLIAM E. GERDING,
Treasurer of the Bruederlicher-Unterstuetzungs Verein.

Observe German Day.

The observance of German day by the United German societies of the city will be a great event, bringing together as it will many of the German societies of the city—particularly the singing societies and the Fort Wayne Turnverein. There will be band and vocal music and various athletic contests and an address by Rev. Pedro Ilgen, of St. Louis, Mo., who is a splendid German orator. The songs will be of the German type, the titles being familiar ones to many. As programed, they are "On the Rhine," by the Kreis Stolzenau Singing society; "Love and Home," by the Saxonia Singing society; "The Fatherland," by the United Singing societies, and "The Shepherd's Song," "The Hunter's Song," "In the Forest." The Germans are famous singers and those of Fort Wayne have won honors in many contests held.

In the forenoon the Fort Wayne Turnverein Vorwaerts will give an exhibition drill, and in the afternoon there will be athletic contests of a varied character. The program for the evening is a concert given by the German singing societies of the city.

The Germans in Fort Wayne.

The observance of these two events, with that of the anniversary of the establishment of the Lutheran church in this city, largely attended as each of them will be, will call attention to the prominence of the Germans in Fort Wayne's history, for from pioneer days they have held the lead in population as far as nationality is concerned. And this is the case today, embracing as they do not only the German Lutheran church, but the Catholic and Reformed churches as well. The government census for 1910 states that 4,501 of the residents of Fort Wayne at that time were born in Germany. This, with those of German parentage, would make the Germans the leading nationality in Fort Wayne—easily two-thirds of our population—that is, counting all those in whom the German blood is strong in their veins.

Aside from the French, the Germans were the first settlers in Fort Wayne, and they have played an important part in the history and growth of the city. One among the first Germans coming here—probably the very first—was Henry Rudisill, and to him, in a very large degree, belongs the credit of having started the tide of German emigration to Fort Wayne, and assisting him in later years was Rev. Frederick Wyneken, who in May, 1838, followed Rev. Jesse Hoover as pastor of the German Lutheran congregation here.

The Early Comers.

Mr. Rudisill, who was a German Lutheran, came to Fort Wayne in 1829. He is said to have been the first German settler in this locality. At any rate, it was his influence that soon brought others of his nationality here to make it their homes, and in 1837, when the first German Lutheran congregation was formed in Fort Waayne—the first in Indiana—it had the heads of twenty-four families enrolled as members. This was in October, 1837, and the heads of these families wesr as follows: Henry Rudisill, Conrad Dreibelbiss, Henry Dicher, sr., Henry Dicher, jr., Engelhart Linker, Frederick Holman, John Lindlager, Adam

HENRY E. BRANNING,
The President of the Bruederlicher-Unterstuetzungs Verein.

Wefel, Joshua Hansmann, Yost Weishert, Henry Stoehr, John Eberly, Peter Weishert, Adam Bueck, Henry Strong, Conrad Nill, Hartman Smith, John Hoffman, —— Diedrich, John Eigen, Ferdinand Meyer, William Meyer, Christian Piepenbrink, Christian Heine.

These men, some of whom afterwards became prominent in affairs in business and in politics, can be classed as Fort Wayne's first German citizens, the descendants of whom, many of them, are now residents of the city.

It was about the same time that the first German Catholics began to arrive here as settlers, the building of the canal and in later years the construction of the railroad being the impetus. As the years passed the Germans came in large numbers, Catholic and Lutheran, and they became prominent in the affairs of the city and county.

Said of Them in 1867.

Writing concerning the Germans in these early years, Brice, the city's first historian, said in 1867 in his history of Fort Wayne:

"Of this thrifty class of people, many of them but recently from the old world and others from Pennsylvania, Fort Wayne at an early day was made up. Procuring small tracts of land in some instances, and considerable sections in others, in and about the present limits of Fort Wayne, they began to hew down the trees, clear away and burn the underbrush and stumps, until at length many beautiful and fertile gardens and farms began to appear on all sides.

"Fruit trees were planted and extensive orchards in a few years more began to gladden the newcomers with an abundance of choice fruit, while fields of grain appeared in many places. Gradually came the new buildings and comfortable residences. And so the place moved steadily on to its present growth and prosperity, a city of 30,000. The masses of our German citizens were always busy, with their hands, heads and capital—aiding each other, planning new enterprises, erecting new edifices and preparing the soil for the reception of seed and the cultivation of grain and fruit. The result has been glorious.

"Many of the German settlers have now been here between thirty and forty years—some of them poling their way, at the period of their coming to this point, up the Maumee in pirogues to the then village of Fort Wayne—all quite poor in means, but able of hand and willing of heart to work—to till the soil and build themselves homes. Land being then quite cheap, many made small purchases, while others worked at their trades or hired out as common day or monthly laborers.

"And today it would be difficult, indeed, to enter any of the various machine and general workshops of Fort Wayne and fail to find the German unrepresented. In fact, in many of these extensive establishments a full score of them are at work the year round, not only earning a living, but making purchases of city lots and building thereon. Many have for years prospered in various ways and are today variously engaged in extensive pursuits and esteemed by all for their integrity, intelligence, broad spirit of liberality and love of order. Such are the Germans of Fort Wayne, examples of integrity, frugality, perseverance and industry for all to emulate in the generations to come."

The Germans of Today.

These words of Historian Brice, penned nearly half a century ago, could be repeated now with a stronger emphasis. The Germans of today are among our best class of citizens and in the city's growth and development in recent years and at the present time they are prominent, at the front in business and activities of every class. Fort Wayne is often referred to, speaking in a business and financial sense, as "a solid, substantial city. Nothing has helped more to make it so than the splendid class of German citizens in our midst and in the country round about.

The Germans have in Fort Wayne one of the largest and best colleges in the west. They are active in the support of two great hospitals. Fifteen of the largest and finest churches in the city are those with exclusively German congregations. The greater number of our men engaged in mercantile business are Germans, and they are largely represented in our manufacturing establishments. In fact, in Fort Wayne the German is everywhere, and, as a rule, thrifty and prosperous—a good class of citizens.

Financial Secretary of Bruederlicher-Unterstuetzungs Verein.

Germans in the Nation.

The first German to set foot on American soil was Peter Mennewit, who came from Wesel as the first governor of the New Netherlands, in 1626, but the initial German colony was that established by William Penn in 1683, in Pennsylvania, from which state many of the early pioneers of Allen county and Northern Indiana came.

The emigration was straggling and infrequent during the rest of the century, but when good Queen Anne came to the throne of England she aided them in leaving their native country for the shores of her kingdom, from which, about the year 1703 and afterward, they were sent to people the American colonies. After that the emigration of the Germans to this country was continuous. Today they people every state in the nation, more largely so now in the west than in other sections.

The first regiment of soldiers to reach General Washington in the war for the independence of the American colonies was composed of Germans, under the command of Lieut. Col. Heinrich Miller, and forty of the companies in that great struggle were composed of men of the German nationality. When Washington's troops were suffering from lack of food and clothing at Valley Forge and sent out a plea for help, it was nine Germans who responded by raising $100,000 for their relief.

In the war of the rebellion the Germans had a brilliant record. The first forces to come to the defense of the nation's flag in 1861 was a regiment from Pennsylvania, composed almost entirely of the descendants of these revolutionary patriots who were the first to reach General Washington eighty-five years before that time. In the war of the rebellion 200,000 men of German nationality served in the army of the north, and of these 5,000 were officers.

In peace the Germans have been prominent in every department of human action, in public and in private life, in the industrial, agricultural, business, professional and labor world—many of them leaders in finance. No nationality excels them in music.

We are indebted to the Germans for our American Bible. The first Bible to be printed in any European language was that issued by Christopher Sauer, a German, and Pastorius, another German, wrote the first American school book.

AN ABORIGINAL WOMAN

By Martha McCulloch Williams

A GREEN world lay radiant beneath a stormy sunset, and sweet with the smell of rain, new-fallen a mile away. The rain-clouds had swept by southerly, thus the flittery winds brought fragrance and coolness to Millbank and Evelyn. She sat in the swing, now and again swaying herself lightly; he lay prone upon the warm, short turf, his head pillowed upon one of the great tree-roots rippling up through it.

He stretched his arm luxuriously above his head, looked at his palm as though it were a curiosity, and murmured: "Why do I feel like Adam six thousand years after date?"

"You don't—it is only a pose," Evelyn returned, her head lifting the least bit.

Millbank laughed lazily.

"You know I never pose," he said, trying hard to put reproach into the words, but failing utterly.

Evelyn leaned a little toward him, her fingers set tip to tip, her small shoe tapping the earth impatiently.

"Then you are a wonderful beginner," she said. "Admit that you lugged in Adam, by the ears as it were, so you could tell me you knew what it was to be driven out of Paradise. Don't deny it—the speech is as obvious as it would be inane."

"Deny it! When did I ever contradict a lady?" Millbank returned, letting his gaze wander to the sky, where a crescent moon began to show white in the sea of blue. "Notwithstanding, I have an impression that I meant to say—something else."

"Then, why don't you say it?" Evelyn demanded, sitting straighter.

Millbank shifted his eyes to the leafy intricacies overhead, answering slowly: "I meant to explain—if I said anything further—that, like Adam, I had encountered the aboriginal woman. You know you are aboriginal!" He sat up and looked full in her eyes. "Not unsophisticated—instead, you are—almost too wise. Yet you are full of raw human impulses—as full as though you wore nothing but a dress of leaves and a smile—"

"Indeed! How did you find it out?" Evelyn interrupted.

Millbank rose to his feet.

"Sympathetically," he said, bending low above her, so low that his lips almost touched her silky hair. "I myself am—aboriginal. But there is no need to tell you so. You have known it from the beginning—how mad I am to seize you, and carry you off—far away from men and Mrs. Grundy. You know, too, we should live happy ever after. If only I dared!"

In the last words his voice broke to a hoarse whisper. By the waning light, Evelyn saw his face white. She slid from the swing, and stepped a pace from him, before she said with a little laugh:

"Don't be tragic! I hate to see a good fellow spoiled. And you've shown yourself mostly the best of good fellows; therefore, a delightful surprise. You know, of course, your reputation as a professional lady-killer. You haven't lived up to it in the least. Instead, until now, you've quite lived it down."

Her voice was tranquil, but her knees shook under her; she ached with shame, she ached also with joy. If he would but carry her off! Or, if they could die as they stood—together. Every fiber of her thrilled toward him; he must see it but for the friendly thickening dusk. He took her hands without a word, and made to lead her toward the gate, but stopped a little way off, saying:

"Wait! I had better fetch you a jacket and a hat. You'll be cold in that thin white frock. We shall be traveling until morning."

"Let me go!" Evelyn said quickly. Millbank shook his head. "You will not come back," he said. "I shan't let you escape me. Walk slowly toward the station. I shall overtake you in full time. The train comes a little after moondown. They will think at the house we are going for a stroll—"

"I think we are—to the end of the lane. No farther," Evelyn answered. "So come along! I am not afraid of dew."

"What are you afraid of?" Millbank asked very low.

Evelyn shrank faintly.

"Of you—and mostly of myself," she said. "Listen, I—"

"I refuse. Silence is the only proper answer to heresy," Millbank interrupted, hurrying her forward.

They were almost at the gate. The turn of the path brought the house full in view. So they saw the knot on the steps suddenly dissolve to let through a leaping figure that came toward them, shouting breathlessly:

"Millbank! Millbank! Keep on! Run! You must make the next train. Doctor's telephoned it's your only chance to see your boy alive!"

"Shall I go? The child is—with its mother," Millbank asked in a shaken whisper.

Evelyn pushed him forward almost roughly.

"Unless you go I shall hate you!" she cried very low.

The runner had almost come up with them. The train was whistling for the station next beyond their own. Millbank rushed through the gate and sped on down the lane.

Evelyn's heart went with him, but her soul rose up in thankfulness over peril escaped. She was even grateful to the runner, lathy young Peyton, irreverently nick-named "Daddy Long-legs" by the rest. He came awkwardly beside her, saying in gasps:

"If Lance—shouldn't be—in time—he'll feel like—a murderer. Little Lance—the boy, you know—is quite mad about Daddy. The divorce is five years old, but Daddy has had the kid three months in every year. They're no end chummy—regular pals, in fact. It's funny to hear a mite seven years old talkin' horse, and politics, and betting, same as he was seventy. Somehow, though, it makes you choke when you think about it afterward. He's already keen about college—at least, the football, and rowin', and all that. Don't know yet whether he wants to captain the crew, or be full back in the eleven. Daddy was a football hero, which of course counts a lot. But next to Daddy the youngster loves the water."

"His mother? Does he love her?" Evelyn asked softly.

Peyton drew a long breath.

"I don't know—honestly I don't," he said. "You see, he never talks about her. Lance taught him before he could talk plain that ladies must not be discussed in the presence of mere men. All I ever heard from him about her was: 'My mother is very beautiful, and has beautiful taste.' This was down at Linden, the Millbank place. Lance nearly always keeps him there. It's about all the time he spends in the old homestead. Mrs. Millbank—I beg her pardon, Mrs. Millbank-Ware—sends the boy something every week of his stay. She had sent him a comic clock—a clown-frog which struck the hours by dancing upon a lily-leaf—just before I came—"

"Evidently she loves him enough for both parents," Evelyn interrupted.

Peyton gave her a keen look, answering doggedly: "She has no need to. Lance Millbank is the finest, fondest father I ever knew. That's why I can't help hoping this will bring him and his wife together again—the thought, chance, of losing the boy must make them understand."

"What?" Evelyn asked as Peyton fell silent.

He did not answer for a little while, only walked beside her, keeping his eyes on the sky. When at last he spoke his voice was tense.

"They must understand that after a child comes there is no doing away with marriage—whatever the law says, or even the gospel. I believe she has understood all along; she keeps the men at more than arm's-length, in spite of being so high and gay and going about a lot."

"I wonder why they separated. Does anybody know?" Evelyn asked, mainly for the sake of saying something. She must not let "Daddy Long-legs" suspect how acutely he was torturing her. He gave a quick side-glance before he answered.

"Funny, but I believe she left him because she loved him too much. It—it rather bored him, you see. So when Craigmillar, the catch of ten seasons, new-come into his fortune, grew quite mad about her, she led him on to show Lance what she could do. Lance was never jealous of Craigmillar—he couldn't be. But the fortune was another matter. He himself was losing money right along, just then. Of course there was no scandal. Everything was done decently. And everybody expected her to marry Craigy the minute the decree was made absolute. Instead, she'd have nothin' to say to him. You can't make people believe it, though. They all said it served her quite right when he married somebody else."

"Naturally," Evelyn commented. "It's so comforting to believe the worst of everything. Thank you so much for telling me the story. I've wanted to hear it ever since I knew Mr. Millbank. But there are some few things one can't ask outright."

"Especially—of the man you've swept off his feet," Peyton said, his lazy, drawling musical voice suddenly rough and edged. "I don't mean it for impertinence, Miss Evelyn," he hurried on. "But—I've seen farther, deeper into things than you ever dreamed. That's why I told you. You see, Lance's lawyer is, or was, my guardian. I—I had to warn you, knowing things as I did. Until Lance met you he was—safe. Until you met him—I let myself hope."

Evelyn shrank away from him into a niche of the shrubbery, and stood there trembling, her upraised hands clutching the dewy boughs either side. It would be idle, cruel even, to affect misunderstanding. All summer she had been dimly conscious of Peyton's mounting adoration. There was no one she had liked better, until Millbank came.

"You are not in the least impertinent, only kind," she said gently. "Be kinder still, and take me back to the side entrance. I had rather get away from the rest a little while."

Mrs. Brent, mistress of Waysend, was Peyton's aunt, likewise, in a way, his fairy godmother. Her keen, kindly dark eyes saw far under the surface. Therefore, she was not ill pleased upon the third morning after Millbank's going to read aloud at breakfast his hurried scrawl, which said:

Little Lance has a chance of life, you will be glad to hear. We are taking him to the seashore—his mother and I. He frets so if either of us gets out of his waking sight, there's nothing else to do. The doctors tell us good salt air may save him, but that it is our only hope.

"How dramatic!" cried Miss Anstey, turning sharply upon Evelyn. "To think of a divorced couple brought together this way!"

"Rather say, how dreadful! You know each of them," began Mrs. Appold, the vivacious widow, who had been at swords points with Miss Anstey over Millbank until such time as they had made common cause against Evelyn.

Peyton looked anxiously at Evelyn. He fancied she had not slept much; he knew she had eaten hardly enough for a bird these last days. It filled him with joy no less than pride to hear her interrupt Mrs. Appold with:

"Why not say, 'How providential!' Suppose Mr. Millbank had married either of you. It would have been—well, rather awkward."

Cross-currents of desire, however decorously veiled, create dangerous social whirlpools. Evelyn felt herself caught in one. Would it drown her, or cast her up, bruised and broken, in some far haven? As the days went by she came to lean more and more upon George Peyton. He, knowing all, was still her knight; loyal as he was hopeless. The rest, who had only surmises colored by envy or malice, wounded and shamed her by speeches and by silences, of which she could not in reason complain.

She did not wince for herself. Indeed, she did not wince palpably at all. But in the heavy watches of the night she stared, wide-eyed, at the wheeling stars, wondering, not how she could live a long life lonely—that she had put behind her—but how she should face her father when he came to know. He had strict ideas; divorce was to him a thing most abhorrent. No punishment was equal to his displeasure. He would be shocked—grieved beyond words, and never trust her again. She had been so proud of his trust, and of deserving it.

She did not want to deceive him, to hide her fault, but she did want to put it aside until she herself could tell him with a reasonable calm. He would hear of it, maybe even before he saw her. She knew gossip was busy with her name; the underbreath gossip that flies farther and faster than thistledown. Suppose he heard it in the smoking-room of his steamer homeward bound? She knew, vaguely, the smirch to a woman of having her name bandied in such a place. Hardin Keith would writhe at knowing the bare truth; how much more would he not suffer by hearing the story distorted and overgrown?

Evelyn asked herself the question over and over until her head swam. It was the courage of desperate tenderness that found out an answer. One nail drives out another; so does one story, especially if it be more dramatic and more unauthentic.

"Would you much mind being engaged to me, until after Christmas? And letting people guess it? Especially, Miss Anstey?" she asked of Peyton at the end of a week.

He smiled oddly.

"I might survive it," he said. "Indeed, I should have suggested something of the sort earlier, only I was afraid."

"I—I won't be—troublesome," Evelyn answered humbly. She had quite lost her fine elusive wilfulness these last days.

* * * * *

Waysend lay inland more than a hundred miles. When August came in with deadly, smothering heat and parching drought, Mrs. Brent went to the shore, taking Evelyn and Peyton with her. She had her own bungalow, remote, retired, roomy; occupied only about once in five seasons, but kept trig for all that.

The shore-drive was true to name, and very beautiful—a long, undulating ribbon of smooth-beaten sand, strung beside the sea. One afternoon the fancy seized Evelyn to run the car over it in full sunshine.

"Keep on! And on! I want to fly," she said to Peyton after a long silence while they sped along.

He smiled at her, saying softly: "Where away?" Then, irrelevantly, "We're coming to the Millbank cottage. As I live, there's little Lance down there on the sand! Hallo! What's he doing? He's seen us and is waving to us! I wonder if he remembers me?"

Little Lance came three steps toward them. He was bare-headed, bare-armed, bare-legged, healthily tanned, but still thin.

"I suppose you two people are my mother's friends," he began politely. "She has run up to town for the day. Please to go home and not wake daddy. If you wake him, I can't finish burying him—and then he won't be all mine."

"Oh, I see!" Peyton said, shading his eyes with his hand, the better to stare at a long, muffled outline of something more than half sunk in the sand between them and the water.

"What put that in your mind, little man?"

He nodded toward the long shape, and looked at the child. The lad gave him back a steady gaze.

"My mother. I've been very, oh, very sick. When I was so sick, she would hug me hard and say: 'You'll be all mine when I have buried you.' And I want daddy—not whiles—but all the time. I'm burying him, all over—then he can never go away."

"Does he know what you are doing?" Peyton asked.

"Partly," he said. "I asked him might I bury his feet. And he lay down in the grave I dug, and laughed and went to sleep. He's all covered up but his nose and his tippy-toes—he's very big, and my bucket is very small."

"I see," Peyton said again. He felt Evelyn trembling beside him. She got out of the car suddenly and started toward the child, who put out his hand to her, smiling up in her face.

Before either of them could speak there came a sound that made them turn—the chug-chug of a heavy runabout. It was coming toward them, facing Peyton's car. It was empty, except for the chauffeur, who sat hunched forward, scowling impatiently and swearing drunken oaths. Peyton had halted his car where the drive curved half-moon wise around a little landlock inlet. The drunken chauffeur, instead of following the roadway, sent his car upon the beach sand across the chord of the arc, straight for the recumbent figure, nearly hidden in the sand.

Peyton shouted at him. He paid no heed. There was nothing for it but to force him. Peyton wrenched his wheel far over, held it hard until he was within two yards of the other car, then flung himself out upon the kindly yielding sands.

He heard as he fell the crash and grating of a shattering impact, the wild crying of the drunken fellow, a child's shrill cry. Then he knew no more until he found himself looking up, faint and breathless, into Evelyn's face. Beside him she knelt, white as the silver moon, but with a new light in her eyes. Millbank, a little way off, smiled softly to see it, and hugged his son, who clung to his neck, trying hard not to cry.

"Georgy! Dear lad! That was the pluckiest thing! How can I ever thank you!" Millbank said, kneeling upon Peyton's other side, and wringing his hand.

Peyton drew a long, long breath, sat up weakly, and put a hand to his head, but said in gasps, his eyes on Evelyn: "Don't thank me. It was for her sake. I couldn't let you be crushed before her eyes."

"You would have done it, anyway!" Evelyn cried—Evelyn no longer white, but red as any rose. "And I am glad you would," she hurried on, "because I want the man I love to show what he is—the bravest man in the world."

"He is. The very bravest. And I wish you joy—the joy you both deserve," Millbank said huskily. "I'm going to devote the life you risked your neck, and broke your arm to save, to trying to deserve my boy—and his mother."—Copyright, The Frank A. Munsey Company.

ORDERED PLANS FOR NEW DEPOT

Wabash Architect Will Make Drawings of Proposed Passenger Depot

NICKEL PLATE WILL STOP NOISE NUISANCE

And Residents in Vicinity of Round House Can Sleep in Peace Hereafter.

The Wabash officials and managers have instructed the company's architect to make drawings and specifications for a passenger station in Fort Wayne, for which measurements were taken by surveyors some time ago. The new station, it is said, will occupy grounds upon which the old freight house and passenger station are now located, and work upon the building will commence early next spring. This, it is alleged, is one of the improvements figured upon when the receivers asked for and obtained permission to issue $2,500,000 receiver's certificates. Rumors that the company would build a new passenger station here have been in circulation for some time, but until this week no credence was given them, because they apparently lacked authenticity.

OFFICES ABOLISHED.

Alton Returns to Methods of Samuel M. Felton.

President B. A. Worthington, of the Chicago and Alton road, has patterned after the regime of Samuel M. Felton in the organization of his forces. Frank W. Morse resigned a short time ago as vice president and general manager of the Alton and later Vice President Walter L. Ross was appointed president of the Clover Leaf and immediately following these changes President Worthington abolished the offices. Instead the office of general traffic manager has been established and George A. Blair will assume the duties of it September 1. It is said that Mr. Morse turned down a proposition to take the presidency of the Clover Leaf.

WILL STOP THE NOISE.

Nickel Plate Will Endeavor to Abate Alleged Nuisance.

At the request of the residents in the vicinity of the west yards of the Nickel Plate, the officials will try to eliminate the objectionable feature in the construction of their locomotives. As the air pump exhaust is now arranged, it makes considerable noise when the pump is in operation and by changing it the sound can be greatly reduced. This will be simply a return to old methods. The exhaust pipe is now placed on the side and top of the boiler with the mouth a few inches back of the smoke stack and about on a level with the stack. To muffle the sound it will be necessary consumption of fuel, but keeps the front and have it end inside the smoke stack. Thus arranged the noise complained of will be entirely eliminated. It will be more expensive, however, for when the air pump is in operation while the locomotive is standing, the exhaust creates a draft through the firebox and flues and not only causes unnecessary consumtion of fuel, but keeps steam at a much higher stage than desired. "But the residents out here considered the noise a nuisance and that is sufficient cause for change. The Nickel Plate is always ready to abate any nuisance and will do it without a request if it learns of it in time," said one of the officials yesterday. Mayor Jesse Grice and Joseph Huxell, of the board of public safety, went to the Nickel Plate yards yesterday to confer with the local officials concerning the air pump matter and while they were there General Manager A. W. Johnston, with some of his staff officers, arrived and joined in the conference. The city officials were told that the change mentioned above would be made just as rapidly as the engines were sent to the shops. General Manager Johnston made an inspection of the Third district, between Bellevue and Fort Wayne, yesterday on a special train and remained here until 2 o'clock this morning, when his private car was attached to No. 5 and taken to Chicago. Accompanying him on the inspection trip were R. W. Michner, superintendent of transportation; C. B. Hoyt, superintendent of tracks; W. A. Colbie, superintendent of car service, and Supt. S. K. Blair. The party was met at the depot by Supt. H. N. Williams and at the yards by General Foreman George James and Road Foreman of Engines Frank Baldwin. Mr. Johnston took a walk over the premises, spending an hour or two in the yards.

SPECTATORS LATE IN MOVING.

Attendance in Early Part of Field Day Is Small.

With ideal weather for outdoor sports the annual field day of the Pennsylvania Employes Athletic association at the Driving park promises to be the best in the way of talen in all of the events of any yet given by the association. The attendance, however, may not come up to the standard of former years, on account of rival attractions, including the picnic and band concert of the employes at the General Electric Lamp works at Swinney park and the Central league and the shop league ball games. At 1 o'clock this afternoon there had been only seven car loads of people to the Driving park. Later in the day, however, the movement in that direction became heavier and it is predicted that the crowd in attendance will be quite satisfactory. The prizes were never more costly or attractive and the events and the entries in each are more numerous than on former occasions.

CROWD AT SWINNEY PARK.

Lamp Makers Have Well Attended Ice Cream Social.

The annual athletic tournament, band concert and ice cream social of the employes of the General Electric Lamp works is in progress at Swinney park and every car moving in that direction is loaded to its full capacity. An efficient and interesting feature of the day is the contest for popularity of ten of the young ladies employed at the works. Each has had friends at work selling votes at one cent per vote and at 2 o'clock this afternoon the contest closed and a committee consisting of reporters of the city papers commenced counting the votes. The result of the contest will not be known until the count is finished.

ICE MACHINERY BUILDING GROWS.

The first No. 2 ice making machine was delivered to the testing department of the Audiffren-Singrun Refrigerating Machine company's plant this morning. This machine has a capacity for making 400 pounds of ice daily and it is expected to be one of the most popular sizes of the four to be turned out by the company. Some three or four weeks ago the company began building the No. 3 machine, which has a capacity of 1,000 pounds per day. Production is being gradually expanded and it is expected that the plant will be turning out four sizes of the ice making machine within a month or two.

BORROWING ENGINES.

Business on the Grand Rapids and Indiana has passed beyond the capacity of the company's motive power and borrowing from the Pennsylvania has been resorted to. Five engines were borrowed some time ago and today two more, Nos. 9263 and 9072, were turned over to the Rapids and will be put into freight service immediately. These two engines have just been rebuilt in the Fort Wayne shops.

INVITED TO HUNTINGTON.

Loyal lodge, No. 85, Ladies' Auxiliary to the B. R. T., has received an invitation to attend the celebration at Huntington of the eleventh anniversary of the founding of the Lime City auxiliary. Loyal lodge will hold a meeting at the Unity hall Monday to make arrangements for going to Huntington on that occasion. Fort Wayne lodge, No. 136, B. R. T., has also been invited to attend the celebration and will send a delegation.

WILL TAKE TRIP UP NORTH.

Engineer and Mrs. M. J. Maroney, of 429 Fourth street, who are afflicted with hayfever, will spend a month at Sault Ste. Marie. Mr. Maroney is a prominent member of the Nickel Plate Veterans' association, which holds its annual meeting in Chicago Saturday, September 7, and he has planned to start for the north on Tuesday, September 10.

FIRST VACATION IN 29 YEARS.

William Schultz, who took employment at the Fort Wayne Electric works twenty-nine years ago, when it first came into existence, will take his first vacation next week. He leaves Monday for Indianapolis and will remain there two weeks. Fred Schultz, a brother to William, will have charge of the dynamo assembling room during the absence of William, the foreman.

WILL RESUME SCHOOL WORK.

CHICKEN CAR UPSET.

A chicken car, just out of the car builders' hands, was derailed and turned over on its sides, clear of the tracks, at Taylor street this morning. It lies on its side in front of the residence of Henry L. Fletter, the traction line man, at 911 Taylor street. The car is not damaged.

GOOD FIVE DAYS' WORK.

During the five days this week the Pennsylvania erecting shops were in operation twelve engines received general repairs and were turned over for service. They were Nos. 9013, 9039, 9093, 9256, 9950, 7708, 7260, 10683, 9099, 7039, 7601 and 7049.

OUT OF THE HOSPITAL.

Councilman Allen Hamilton, who was in the hospital for a week for the removal of a growth on his lip, is getting along first rate and left the hospital this morning. He expects to resume his work in the Pennsylvania machine shop in a few days.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Fireman D. Bauerle, of the Nickel Plate, is sick and off duty.

Charles Houser, painter at the Electric works, will go to Decatur, Ind., tonight to spend Sunday with relatives.

W. D. Sterns, trainmaster for the Lake Shore, with headquarters at Jackson, Mich., was in the city yesterday.

Harry McMillan, time clerk at the Bass works, completes his vacation today and will resume his duties Monday.

H. W. Bruggeman, stenographer in the shipping room at the Fort Wayne Electric works, goes on his vacation next week.

A. Z. Polhamus, general manager of the S. F. Bowser company, has returned after a two weeks' fishing trip in Michigan.

Mrs. F. P. Parnin and children, Doris and Ross, have returned from a three weeks' visit with relatives in Colorado and Kansas.

Joseph Panyard, machinist on the night trick at the Pennsylvania round house, is taking a week's lay-off to attend to private affairs.

C. E. Saunders, of Orlanda, Fla., salesman for the S. F. Bowser company for the past twenty-two years, is visiting in the city on business.

F. W. Leidolf, Nickel Plate fireman, resumed work today. He had been visiting at Baldwin, Mich., a month. His family was with him.

C. E. Smith, switchman, resigned a position with the Wabash, after working about a month. He is going to the Canadian Pacific to work.

Robert O. Orff, of the production department of the Electric works, will resume work Monday. He has been at Clear lake the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bryan have gone to Pennsylvania to spend a week or two with her folks, who live there. Mr. Bryan is a Nickel Plate brakeman.

Nickel Plate Engineer Calvin F. Durnfee and his family are taking a somewhat extended visit in the west and will not return until some time in September.

Carl Woodworth, motive power inspector at Wheeling, W Va., for the Baltimore and Ohio, is here visiting his aunt, Mrs. H. G. Granger, of 722 Jackson street.

Capt. J. A. Raush, who had jurisdiction over the entire police department of the Erie, has resigned and has been succeeded by C. D. Abel, of Susquehanna, a lieutenant.

Richard Puff, chief clerk in the Bass foundry office, accompanied by his wife and son, left this morning for Lima, Ohio, where they will visit relatives two or three days.

A boat in the river at South Chicago ran against and put the Pennsylvania bridge out of commisson yesterday. Some of the passenger trains were delayed two hours by the accident.

George Stahl, of Pittsburg, who had been visiting his relatives in this city for a month, left for his home yesterday. He is an uncle to Fred and Harvey Stahl, of the Pennsylvania machine shop.

Local Freight Conductor J. W. Weigel, Brakemen J. W. Smith and P. V. Tingle, of the Nickel Plate, are sick and off duty and Brakeman C. M. Rogers is taking a lay-off to look after some business.

E. F. Needham, superintendent of motive power of the Wabash, passed through the city this morning en route to Detroit. Master Mechanic G. W. Smith joined him here and went to Detroit also.

Charles King, of the Bass offices, joined his family at Clear lake last night and will remain until Monday, when they will accompany him home. Mrs. King and the children went to the lake several days ago.

Passenger train No. 43, of the Lake Erie, due to leave this city at 6 p. m., will be held one hour on Sunday to accommodate out-of-town visitors, who will be here Sunday on the occasion of the German day celebration.

O. J. Wilson, of the Wabash store room, is slightly ill and did not report for duty this morning. Mr. Wilson has worked for the Wabash ever since 1856, being the oldest man in point of service now with the company in Fort Wayne.

The Peru division of the B. L. F. & E. will have an excursion and a picnic at Bruce lake next Tuesday. The firemen who live in Peru and are employed on the Wabash, the Lake Erie and Western and the Chesaneake and Ohio, and their families, will be the participants in the outing.

The Wabash shops are closed today because a great number of the employes had asked permission to get off to attend the Pennsylvania field day and the annual blowout of the General Electric Lamp works. Operations will be resumed Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Schallenberger, of Lafayette street, have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Henry Aker and children, of Pittsburg. Mr. Aker is the Pennsylvania freight house foreman at Pittsburg. Some years ago he was stationed in this city in the same capacity, being succeeded by Chris Kees.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Reed, of 1763 West Main street, are entertaining their niece and nephew, Miss Florence Horn and Henry Horn, of Cleveland. The latter is a machinist and recently completed a four years' term in the government naval yards. He will take employment in railway shops in Cleveland.

Supt. T. Mackrell, of the Erie, has restricted the pass privileges of the shopmen and other employes to three a year. The bulletin making this announcement stated that the reason for the ruling was that the employes had been abusing the pass privilege. This order does not affect the annual passes of the conductors and engineers.

William H. Moeller, machinist at the Pennsylvania shops, is suffering from appendicitis at his home, No. 1431 North Calhoun street. It is believed he will not have to submit to a surgical operation. Mr. Moeller was a candidate for the democratic nomination for sheriff of Allen county at the last campaign and made a very creditable race.

The Amity orchestra is a new musical organization in Fort Wayne. Its members are shopmen who compose the Amity club, a social organization. The personnel of the orchestra members is as follows: B. W. Jansen, pianist and leader; C. Mennewisch, first violin; C. Swinney, second violin; P. Droegemeyer, clarinet; T. E. Tienan, traps, and H. Bente, bass violin.

Albert Bernard, who was the only one seriously injured in the wreck of the Pennsylvania flyer two weeks ago, is now beyond danger and his rapid recovery is expected. He is conscious and can talk to the relatives and hospital attendants.

Chief Surgeon C. B. Stemen, of the Pennsylvania, Mrs. Stemen and their daughters have returned home after attending the Stemen family reunion at Delphos Wednesday and the Enslen family reunion at the Enslen farm near that city on Thursday.

20 YEARS ON INVENTION.

Man Says Perpetual Motion Machine Runs Under Its Own Power.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 24.—Frank Clark, of this city, inventor of a perpetual motion machine, has been at work on his invention for twenty years, spending every minute of his spare time on the machine. Clark says he has built two machines that have run without stopping until the woodwork rotted. Weights are used to generate power. The main wheel is forty-eight inches in diameter, is made of chilled steel and weighs about two hundred pounds. There are many small wheels, cogs and pulleys arranged about the main wheel. Men who have seen the machine say it runs under its own power. Mr. Clark is one of the members of the company which was incorporated at Indianapolis at $100,000 to manufacture the machine.

California Women Not Rushing for Office, But Here's Four Who Are in the Running.

MRS. HELEN W. HALL. LUCY GOODE WHITE.

MRS. LIZZIE ROBE. MRS. ADELAIDE OSWALD.

Women have been genuine, full-fledged citizenesses for nearly a year in California now, with the right to vote and otherwise engage in matters political to the full limit allowed men folks. But while the number who are participating in elections as voters is steadily increasing, women are not showing any great eagerness to capture political office.

Out of some seventy-five candidates running for nomination as state senators and assemblymen and superior judges at the approaching primary election in San Francisco, but four are women. And these four are all socialists, earnest workers in the ranks of the socialist party and running as party candidates.

Three of the women, Mrs. Helen Willsey Hall, Mrs. Lizzie Robe and Mrs. Adelaide Oswald, are candidates for the assembly in the Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth and Thirty-first districts, respectively. Miss Lucy Goode White is a candidate for the superior bench.

Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Oswald are secretaries of the socialist locals of their districts, and Mrs. Robe is organizer for her district local.

Miss White is legally qualified for the bench, having been admitted to the bar before coming to California. She has not practiced law in this state, being engaged as a newspaper writer.

DOLLAR A POUND HAMS DISCUSSED

Those Cured with Hickory Wood Smoke Said to Be Just as Good.

AS THE OLDER ONES

New York, Aug. 24.—Somebody dug up some hundred year old hams in an underground passage near an old colonial mansion in the vicinity of Providence, R. I., recently and they were so well preserved that they sold briskly at a dollar a pound.

The hams, it is stated is a dispatch from Providence, were packed in wood ashes and were so excellent in flavor that a systematic search of the old cellars of the neighborhood is being made in the hope of finding more of the same kind.

Ham, like some other articles of consumption, improves with age to a certain extent, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. What is commercially regarded as old ham, however, is not necessarily aged in years and it is to be questioned if it would be greatly improved by preservation for a century or for any material part of a century. The fact is it is the treatment rather than the age which makes the good ham. Wood ashes will preserve the meat for an indefinite period—for as much as a century, it would appear, if the Rhode Islanders are correct in their dates and are good judges of ham.

Certainly no modern process of curing hams has been equal to the primitive methods that prevailed when every farmer was his own butcher, and boasted a well filled smokehouse at all seasons of the year. In those days the hams were cured with the smoke of a hickory wood fire and thereby acquired a flavor that no packing house method can impart. Probably that was the system used with the Rhode Island hams. Doubtless there are farmers in some parts of the country who continue the old fashioned, painstaking mode of treating their meat supply, but not much of that kind of meat finds its way to the metropolitan markets.

No wonder the Rhode Island folk jumped at the opportunity to buy these century old hams at a dollar a pound. But the chances are that in some of the old fashioned smokehouses now remaining in Kentucky there are hams two or three years old that are just as good—if not better.

PIG OWNERS OPPOSE LAW.

Sept. 1 Set as Death Day for Surplus Porkers in Belleville, N. J.

New York, Aug. 24.—An ordinance recently passed by the Belleville (N. J.) board of health, which goes into effect Sept. 1, providing that no more than three pigs may be kept by one person, is causing trouble to the owners of "porkers." John Omulsky, who has twenty-five pigs, told the board its members would have to purchase his surplus pigs, as he saw no other way of getting rid of them. There are several tenements in Silver lake, each of which contains six families, each family owning from two to ten pigs. According to the new law they can not keep even one pig each. A Silver lake resident owns eleven, several of them only four days old. He says it would be impossible to sell them before Sept. 1. The board, however, declares the ordinance must be obeyed. The health of the community, it claims, demands it.

DENY THAT IRON SUPPLY IS GONE

Profitable Deposits Are Still Unworktd, Says State Geologist.

MORE TOOLS NEEDED

Jefferson City, Aug. 24.—Prof. H. A. Buehler, state geologist, in a report to Governor Hadley which covers more than 430 printed pages, does not agree with the theory that the iron deposits of this state have practically been exhausted. This report deals alone with iron ores and contains figures and facts up to February of the present year. As near as Professor Buehler could learn, the state has produced 9,134,024 tons of iron ore, valued at $32,576,048.

The presence of iron ore in Missouri is mentioned in the report of Marquette on his voyage down the Mississippi river in 1673. He described a deposit he examined in the southeast corner of Perry county as consisting of several "veins of ore and a bed a foot thick, and one sees large masses of it united with pebbles."

The first furnace was erected in Iron county in 1815, and the ore was obtained from Shepard mountain. Speaking of this incident, Professor Buehler says:

"Although the brown ores were the first to be discovered and were, in part, much nearer to the Mississippi river, the specular hematite of the St. Francois mountains and the red and blue specular hematites of the Central Ozarks were the first to be generally utilized, chiefly due to their higher grade. The first atempt to utilize the red and specular hematite of the Central Ozarks was in 1819-20.

"Not until the opening of the large deposits at Iron mountain and Pilot Knob, between 1845 and 1850, did Missouri obtain very great importance in the iron industry. In the next thirty years Missouri became an important iron center. The state held this position until 1888, when there was a sharp decline in production. That decline may be attributed chiefly to the exhaustion of the more high grade ores at Pilot Knob and Iron mountain and in Central Ozarks. About that time there was a rapid decline in the price of iron ore, due chiefly to the discovery of high-grade Bessemer ore in the Lake Superior regions and which could be mined at a very low cost.

"Not until the last decade have the brown ores attracted any considerable attention. They occur abundantly in the southern part of the state.

"At the present time there is only one iron furnace in blast in this state. It is located at Sligo, Dent county. It is so situated as to absorb the output of the central ore district, but is not available for the ores of Southeast Missouri.

"The furnace of the St. Louis Blast Furnace company, located in South St. Louis, until recently took most of the ore mined in Southeast Missouri. This furnace went out of blast in August, 1911, and since that time Southeast Missouri has been without furnace facilities. This fact has necessitated the closing down of all the limonite deposits of the southeast district. The ore from Pilot Knob is being shipped to smelters in Ohio.

"The most important factor in the revival of the iron industry in the state is adequate smelting facilities for the ores of Southeastern Missouri. The development of these deposits in the last few years has materially increased the yearly output of the state. The numerous deposits, when properly developed, are capable of maintaining a yearly tonnage equal to, if not greater, than the

The greatest production of the state

Theg reatest production of the state in any one year was in 1871, when ore valued at $15,693,470 was marketed. That has dwindled down to an annual output in 1910 of $169,186.

Professor Buehler believes there is still a great future for Missouri in the iron industry. Ore that was once considered unprofitable is now of great value. The two great drawbacks have been shipping facilities and smelters.

BIG GRIST FOR THE COURT MILL

Majority of Cases in City Court Were Vags and Drunks.

PLENTIFUL IN CITY

The city police are making an effort to rid Fort Wayne of the vagrants and loiterers making headquarters in this part of the country, and of twenty-nine cases on the docket for the city police court this morning, the greatest number of them consisted of vagrancy and loitering charges.

One officer said this morning that he saw fully fifty tramps and bums come out of the Nickel Plate yards after one of the through freights had passed.

Has Bad Record.

Leo Stoddard was stopped on Main street early this morning by Officer Brennan, who found Stoddard to be carrying a wicked appearing gun. Stoddard has served several terms for burglary and his record is being investigated. Judge Mungovan this morning fined him $15 and costs and ordered the sheriff to destroy the gun.

Of the vagrancy cases disposed of this morning, William Tucker, Russel Foley and Leslie Gamble were told to get out of town, and continue their journey to St. Louis. Ben Butler, a vagrant peddler, will have to serve out a fine of $1 and costs. Walter Cook and George Wier are on their way to Cleveland, and Judge Mungovan warned them to keep going. August Pascoe, Fred Hay and John Lapholder also were allowed to go with warnings. Jim Bonannon and Earl Wynott, have no money, but they promised to leave the city if allowed to go, and the judge urged them to keep the promise. Harry Burns was allowed to return to his work on the track elevation job.

Of the public intoxication cases, John Raidy will stand trial next Monday morning. Frank Brown and Harry Jones were fined $1 and costs. Charles Roach, a cigarmaker, is a near physical wreck from drinking, and for eleven days he will be in jail; Joe Maguire and James Crumley also were fined $1 and costs. John Garber has over $90 with him, and has been on a spree for several days. He can hardly stand up and Judge Mungovan ordered him to jail until next Thursday to sober up. Joseph Hammelthol's case was also postponed until Wednesday. Ed Klinger was fined $1 and costs, which he paid, and Tom Ward will serve out a $5 and costs fine. Charles Kraft, an inveterate drunkard, with a large family, was allowed to go, with orders to report semi-monthly concerning the amount of care he is giving the family. Rudolph Sherricks was allowed to go.

SLIGHTLY HURT IN WRECK.

Miss Rose Traub and Sister, Mrs. Baade, Figure in Train Mishap.

"We were in wreck today. Bruised only slightly. Don't worry," are the contents of a telegram from Miss Rose Traub, of this city, and her sister, Mrs. Henry Baade, of Marion, Ind., received in this city Friday evening.

The telegram is dated Petoskey, Mich., and was sent Friday afternoon. Miss Traub and her sister, who was formerly Miss Louise Traub, of this city, went to Mackinac several weeks ago for their summer's outing, and have been making numerous side trips out of Mackinac. When injured they were riding on a Pere Marquette train going south that ran into a suburban train head-on, about seven miles south of Petoskey.

Several others were injured in the wreck, including Richard C. Butler, of Little Rock, Ark., and Engineer Jacob Kothe, of the regular train. The former was seriously hurt, but the engineer's injuries are very slight.

CHLOROFORMED IMPRISONED MAN.

Pekin, Ill., Aug. 24.—After working all night, workmen of a bridge crew rescued F. L. Schmidt, who was imprisoned for nearly twenty-four hours in a caisson, thirty-five feet beneath the Illinois river and who died as he was taken out. The caisson, used in construction of a bridge, was covered last night by a fall of earth. Schmidt had to be chloroformed while men dug away sand which surrounded him up to his chin.

HE GIVES FOR THE PURE LOVE OF IT

Charities of Chicago Man Extend in many Different Directions

HE LIKES TOMATOES

Kansas City, Aug. 23.—Once every year a busy Chicago business man puts the city by the lake behind him, spending the night in a Pullman to reach Kansas City the next day. However occupied he may be downtown that day, he is never too engrossed to quit the business district by mid afternoon and board a street car for the south part of the city. On a certain quiet residence street he enters a house a most welcome guest, though unbidden. The friendly visit nearing an end, a genial smile o'erspreads his face as they seat themselves, a little family party, at dinner.

One dish—stewed tomatoes—is always on the table. The busy man from Chicago who has come so far to his dinner always eats with zest. And always, before he leaves he places quietly in the hands of the woman whose house is always open to him $250 in paper money. Always the stewed tomatoes; always the $250. Then good-bye and he is gone.

What does it men? Simply this, that Julius Rosenwald, who gave away a fortune a few days ago, has come to take dinner with a Kansas City woman, who is his cousin. He is very fond of stewed tomatoes. She always has them for him. He doesn't believe in keeping money when others need it, and there you have the reason for the gift of $250.

This incident has been related to impress upon you this fact: Julius Rosenwald gives to charity, and he gives himself while giving dollars. That is the significant thing about this millionaire. And more striking still is the fact that he has never created the Julius Rosenwald foundation by which his giving is done impersonally, automatically and cold-bloodedly.

For Julius Rosenwald studies the needs of those persons and those institutions of charity he seeks to help. When he digs down into his pocket for $50,000, or $100,000, or $250,000 he knows it is going where there is a pressing need for help, where it will return 101 cents for every dollar in the good that money does, and where, above all else, humanity is getting a push forward and upward.

Only a day or two ago Mr. Rosenwald celebrated his fiftieth birthday anniversary.

"There is no use in having money unless you can spend it," he said. "It is not worth while piling it up."

And that day there was announced his gift of $687,500. Charity and education received this sum. Half a million was split evenly between the University of Chicago and the Associated Jewish Charities in Chicago. More interesting still was the apportionment of $25,000 of this sum to "Dr. Booker T. Washington for the improvement and elevation of schools for negroes." A Chicago tuberculosis sanitarium got $25,000. It needed a new building.

Fifty thousand dollars went for a country club, a rest house, for social workers in Chicago. Men and women who toil day after day in the gloom and grime of a great city's slums need glimpses of green grass and trees now and then. Others in the list were equally important.

To Jane Addams, of Hull House, was given the honor of announcing the method chosen by Mr. Rosenwald of celebrating his fiftieth birthday. Of Mr. Rosenwald she says:

Mr. Rosenwald has long given regularly and constantly to charitable organizations. He has such a comprehensive, practical knowledge of the conditions of the day that every dollar he gives does its full value. I think there are few philanthropists who study conditions so thoroughly and practically. He has given intelligently and discriminately, always displaying the great big heart he possesses to help mankind."

Characteristically simple were his letters announcing these gifts. For instance, this is how he broke the news to the University of Chicago:

"I take great pleasure in offering you the sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) on this, my fiftieth birthday."

Besides these larger bequests, which cannot be given in secret, much money and assistance comes from Mr. Rosenwald in a quiet way that is never heard of. It goes to families in his walks about Chicago, to this man and that woman who has never had a real chance in life. He has no regular amount to give each year, nor any special system in making gifts, beyond the fact that he is thoroughly well informed about charitable work.

"I don't believe in the practice of giving money away after death," Mr. Rosenwald says. "I believe in seeing the money that is not necessary being used to help others at once."

That's the Rosenwald platform of social justice and his way of administering it.

Mr. Rosenwald takes time daily for a visit to his mother. He maintains relationship toward his home and family that are almost ideal. He knows every boy and girl in his own block. They all recognize him as a true friend. He plays cratic. To know him is to love him. In his neighborhood. He is very democratic. To kno whim is to love him. In short, he is Chicago's most useful citizen.

LEADERS TOUCH OFF FIRST GUNS

Cralisle, Wurzer and Lane Address Meeting of Republicans.

FIRST OF CAMPAIGN

Hon. Charles A. Carlisle, who was a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination on the republican ticket in Indiana, and F. H. Wurzer, republican nominee for attorney general, addressing a mass meeting of republicans held this afternoon in the assembly room of the court house, fired the first guns in the speaking campaign of the G. O. P. in the Twelfth congressional district. Judge J H. Rose presided and among the other speakers were Charles R. Lane, republican nominee for congress from this district.

Prior to the mass meeteing, the two South Bend politicians, with A. E. Houk, chairman of the Allen county central committee, Mr. Lane, District Chairman A. J. Vesey, O. N. Guldlin and Judge Rose, held a short conference in the office of Mr. Vesey, and the political situation was discussed.

"We find in the Thirteenth district, and have reason to believe that conditions are the same in other sections of the state, that everything in politics is becoming more settled. All is looking better in South Bend and throughout the entire St. Joe valley," said Mr. Carlisle. "Party lines are being drawn more closely. We are not having as much trouble with the Bull Moosers there as other districts are reporting."

Fair Crowd Present.

A medium-sized audience was in attendance when Mr. Wurzer started his address, and the speaker met an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Wurzer in a masterful manner urged the true republicans to rally to the party cause, declaring that the republican party is a party of the constitution, and that it must be preserved. He spoke at some length on the third party movement and said that real republicans will not withdraw from the party in spite of the progressive movement and Theodore Roosevelt. It was pointed out that in some places it is said farmers are opposed to Taft for his stand on reciprocity, and the speaker informed those present that it would do no good for them to flock to the democratic party, or to Roosevelt on account of this, as Rosevelt and leaders of the democratic party assisted in the reciprocity movement at its inception.

Is Better Republican.

Hon. Charles A. Carlisle, who was defeated when he sought the nomination for governor, remarked about this fact, and was loudly cheered when he declared that he is now a better republican than ever.

"I am a better republican today than ever before," he said. "I believe in my party and the men who affiliate with it. I know the leaders are honest and pure and statesmenlike. I am glad that I could have the opportunity of testing the real value of these great party leaders and determine for myself if they were all bad and impure and corrupt. I lost the victory of the nomination, but I won a great satisfaction to my own conscience that our party leaders represent the highest type of honor, integrity and value as republicans.

"If the republican party is wrong—if it has made mistakes—let us get together and correct them. I claim for the republican party that it is as free today from the corruptionists as any other party is. I believe that from this day on party lines should be drawn forward sharply and definitely, and if you are a republican, then stand by your colors."

Owing to the length of the program Mr. Lane spoke briefly. He was enthusiastically greeted and the republicans plainly showed in applause that they are well pleased with his nomination for congress from their district.

TO BE EXCOMMUNICATED.

Hungarian Priest at South Bend Will Be Out of Church.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 24.—Announcement will be made in all Catholic churches tomorrow in this city of the canonical excommunication of Rev. Victor Von Kubinyi, by Rt. Rev. Herman Joseph Alerding, bishop of the Fort Wayne diocese. Father Kubinyi is pastor of the Hungarian Catholic church of the Sacred Heart, which recently joined the Independent Polish church, headed by Bishop Francis Hodul, of Scranton, Pa.

The accused priest is charged with disobeying ecclesiastical authority in holding mass without the proper authority and it is also charged that he has joined the independent church. Father Kubinyi and his adherents are branded as schismatics by Bishop Alerding, and the Catholic people of the community and diocese are warned against associating with him or giving him any support under penalty of like excommunication.

RAILROAD VETERAN IS DEAD.

St Paul, Aug. 24.—Thomas L. McDermott, who as station agent of the Illinois Central railroad at Galena, Ill., sold tickets to Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas after one of their great debates, died here today. He came to this city about two years ago after having retired from the service of the Illinois Central, by which he had been employed fifty-three years and from which he received a pension. For fifty years he had been station agent for that road at Galena and was well known to its leading officials, many of whom were his personal friends. Among the latter he counted Marvin Hughitt formerly with that road, now president of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. Three of Mr. McDermott's sons entered the railroad business.

Be sure and attend the most successful sale we ever held—now going on.

Marching Through Georgia With Sherman

In Section 13 of the Long-Lost, Original

Brady War Photographs

Only 10c

THIS great section—out now—contains a complete and thrilling narrative of Sherman's advance on Atlanta with 100,000 men and the final capture of the city.

During the four months' campaign the Union Army participated in ten pitched battles and scores of lesser engagements, all of which are vividly described in this section, and illustrated with photographs of the ground over which the battles were fought, the generals who lead both armies and others, among which are the following:

Resaca, Field of the First Heavy Fighting.
Pine Mountain, Where Polk, the Fighting Bishop of the Confederacy, Was Killed.
Federal Entrenchments at the Foot of Kenesaw Mountain.
Thomas' Headquarters Near Marietta During the Fighting of the Fourth of July.
Peach-Tree Creek, Where Hood Hit Hard.
The Final Blow to the Confederacy's Southern Stronghold.
The Ruin of Hood's Retreat, Demolished Cars and Rolling-Mill—and many more including

A Colored Frontispiece—Ready for Framing

What We Have Done for the People of Fort Wayne

We have secured the rights for this city to distribute this priceless collection of Civil War Photographs and delighted to present them to everyone who applies promptly. Ten cents, to cover necessary expenses, brings you any one section. There are no other conditions whatever.

The series naturally begins with Bull Run, that first great encounter of armed troops of the North and South. If you haven't received this section, or any of the others that follow it, we will supply you with either or all of the first thirteen sections for 10 cents each if you send in your order at once. By mail, 14c.

Capture of Atlanta

In Section 13

is a thrilling story of Sherman's advance upon Atlanta and the bloody battles at Dalton, Resaca, Dallas, and Lost and Kenesaw Mountains. Finally Johnston retired to the entrenchments at Atlanta where he was relieved of his command by Hood. Later the city was taken.

The photographs in this section show just how "The Waste of War" looked while the destroying cannons were booming when Sherman marched through Georgia.

Time and again, as fast as the invading army could march, whole railroads had to be remade as the result of the activity of Johnston's cavalry, while great bridges, spanning wide and swollen rivers, had to be rebuilt half a dozen times in a few months.

These photographs are vivid reminders of the terrible scenes through which the nation passed before its final cementing into a perfect Union. They tell of the disasters resulting from stubbornness, from failure to compromise—and will do more to win humanity to the cause of universal peace than all the oratory that can fall from the lips of man.

You owe it to yourself, you owe it to your children, to let them see all this, learn all this—and the only way is to subscribe to these handsome portfolios.

PHILATELIST BY PECULIAR LUCK

Finds Old Stamps Which Enable Him to Make a Trip to Europe.

IS NOW AN EDITOR

Kansas City, Aug. 23.—In Superior, Neb., a town of 3,000 inhabitants, is published what is claimed to be the largest magazine for the interest of collectors in the United States. This magazine is known as the Philatelic West and the Collectors' World. It reviews collections of everything from coins to cuff buttons, and its circulation extends all the way round the world.

"I became interested in collections twenty years ago," said L. T. Brodstone, editor of the magazine, who stopped in Kansas City. "I found some stamps one day in an attic which proved to be very rare. I sold these for enough money to take a bicycle trip through England, and when I returned I began collecting things myself. Ten years ago I started the magazine. It has been built up until each number requires 100 pages."

In each edition of the magazine are articles and advertisements about stamps, Swiss carvings, coins, Japanese puzzles, reproductions of old documents, post cards, colonial antiques, shells, revolvers, post marks, minerals, Indian relics, books and other articles.

"Nearly all collectors," Mr. Brodstone said, "have more than one hobby. For example, my specialty is Danish postage stamps, but beside those I have collections of Kansas and Nebraska civil war wildcat currency and Odd Fellow medals. Others collect things that I never handle—Indian baskets, wood carvings and what-nots."

BIG BUSINESS IN 1913 AUTOMOBILES.

Far from letting up, the business on the 1913 R-C-H touring car, which was announced about six weeks ago, is constantly increasing. From all parts of the country inquiries are coming in from men who want to handle the R-C-H car, and from prospective buyers who are free to admit that they have never seen an automobile value to touch our latest proposition.

Right now dealers' contracts, through the states of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa alone, are being closed at the rate of one a day, and other sections are right up with this performance.

Labor unrest is no new thing in London. In 1768 Benjamin Franklin was living in Craven street. He was the most trustworthy of observers and has left the record of what he witnessed: Coal heavers pulling down the houses of coal dealers; sailors on strike unrigging all the outward bound merchantmen and closing the port of London till their pay was raised; the very tailors marching down in their thousands to overawe parliament.

BEER DEMAND IS LIGHTER.

Revenue Receipts Here This Month Show a Shortage.

C. M. Blue, deputy United States revenue collector for this district, states that receipts for the month of August will be much lighter than those for the previous months this summer, and attributes the cause of a steadily decreasing demand for beer due to the cool weather of the last few weeks.

Thus far in August receipts from the sale of government stamps amounts to about $30,000, unusually light for this season.

NOTED SWINDLER RELEASED.

Man Who Stole $160,000 Is Freed From French Prison.

Paris, Aug. 24.—The release from jail today of Jean Gallay, the romantic swindler of the Comptoir D'Escompte, has reawakened interest in what was at the time a world-wide sensation.

Gallay's flight on the yacht Catarina in 1905 with Mlle. Merelli and $160,000 put the police of many countries on the alert.

Three weeks after their disappearance from France the two were arrested under the names of Baron and Baroness De Graval at Bahia, Brazil, and money and jewelry to the value of $120,000 were recovered on board the yacht. Gallay was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment, part of which was spent in the galleys of French Guiana. The woman was acquitted.

WANTED—Iron workers and helpers; steady work and good pay for good men. Apply The Engineering Co., corner Winter and Wabash tracks.

STOOD TRIP WELL.

Havre, France, August 24.—Mrs. Robert Goelet stood the voyage across the English channel on her yacht Nahma very well in spite of the rought weather. Although she is said to be very ill and suffering from cancer, she left her cabin and went on deck. Her doctor, however, was constantly in attendance.

POLICE THOUGHT SNAKE WAS THIEF

They Flee in Dark from Big Python in New York Zoo.

IT WAS A MONSTER

New York, Aug. 24.—A snake of the python family, of size able to crush an ox, arrived at the Bronx Zoological garden from South America recently. The snake broke out of its crate before daylight in the property room attached to the reptile house. The python upset several boxes and bottles in its writhings, and the noise awoke Alp. Costian, the night watchman.

"Burglars!" he said over the phone to police headquarters. The operator then hurriedly tipped off the Tremont precinct and Policeman Denis Cahill was sent to the Zoo. Costian, when he sent the message, had forgotten all about the new snake.

Cahill led the way into the dark room. The first thing he set foot on was a rubbery coil of the South American python, which raised its head and hissed. The bluecoat yelled and bounced forth head first.

Meantime Detectives Barry and McCarthy arrived at the Zoo, having been sent to help Cahill in capturing the burglar. They entered the property room, each with a club in one hand a police searchlight in the other, letting the door close itself behind them. The instant they set eyes on the "burglar" they rushed for the door. McCarthy's foot was almost caught in one of the coils of the snake.

After the members of the police force had run out Costian summoned Keeper John Palmer, and together they got the python back into its cage.

"Alec," a twenty-one-foot South American anaconda, died the next day at the Bronx. Its mouth was stretched wide open and Constian said the snake had laughed itself to death over the antics of the three policemen.

STATE SECRETARY COMING.

Northern Indiana Grain Dealers Will Meet Next Week.

A meeting of grain dealers of Northern Indiana will be held next Wednesday evening at the Fort Wayne Commercial club for the purpose of further discussing the question of establishing agricultural bureaus throughout this section of Indiana. A plan has been inaugurated throughout the state to establish experimental farming stations in each county, and the scheme is looked upon favorably by local dealers.

State Secretary Riley, of Indianapolis, has accepted an invitation to attend the meeting and fully explain the work to be done by such a station, and the benefits it will be possible to derive therefrom.

IN A TRANCE CAN FORETELL EVENTS

Wonderful Stunts Do Credit to Fair Daughter of Missouri.

HAS MANY MOODS

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—From the dream depths of a weird cataleptic trance Bessie Stewart, daughter of a Missouri farmer, seems to utter prophecies and foretell events so unerringly that all Northeast Missouri is amazed. She is said to describe scenes in far-off cities hours before the wires bring the news to relatives of the dead in her neighborhood. Apparently she is able to foretell accidents weeks before they befall those she points out as future victims.

When she emerges from this trance state she remembers nothing of what she has said or done. She is the daughter of a well-to-do farmer and graduated from one of Missouri's normal colleges and became a teacher.

The family and friends of Miss Stewart say they have known her to shut herself up in a darkened room and play the most difficult piano selections for hours, compositions that she had never seen or heard.

At other times she has submitted to having herself blindfolded and, it is asserted, has read page after page and column after column of books and newspapers brought into her presence and which she could not possibly have seen. Fits of dancing come over her and she will dance for hours through rhythmical mazes entirely unknown to the simple folk of her neighborhood.

Sometimes she seems to be "Gooding," apparently an African explorer battling with savage Kaffirs and wounded with assegais. When under this influence she talks with an English accent, uses apparently a negro dialect with ease and is worried over camp fevers and hostile savages. In a letter written under the date line of Albanpis, Africa, she tells of being held captive for days by a tribe of monkeys in the Congo river region.

Alternating with this and a dozen other personalities is that of a cave woman who made her skirts by sewing together bird skins with deer sinews and who kills fish with a stone spear.

GAINED TWO POUNDS IN DAY.

Farmer Drank Buttermilk to Increase Weight for the Army.

Columbus, Ind., Aug 24—Wilbur Montgomery, a farmer who lived near this city, has realized his ambition to join the United States army and buttermilk was responsible for it. Montgomery upeared at the recruiting office and said he wished to become a soldier. The officer found him fit in every way for army duty, but when the weight test came Montgomery failed to fill the requirements. He lacked two pounds of being as heavy as the regulations require. The sergeant told the young man he would have to gain weight before he could enlist. Montgomery went home and began drinking buttermilk at the rate of eight glasses an hour. He continued this for several hours and the next morning early he returned to the recruiting office and said he was ready to enlist. The weight test showed he had gained more than two pounds, so he was accepted and was sent to Fort Harrison to report for duty.

DRIVES HARVESTER IN CHAIR.

Up-to-Date Farmer Also Plugs His Leading Horse With Air Gun.

Walla Walla, Wash., Aug. 24.—Over in Franklin county the big ranchers have some unusual methods of harvesting. The owner of a huge farm had a big, easy chair fastened to the hurricane deck of a big combine and was seated in the chair driving thirty-six head of horses. Will A. Campbell, of St. Paul, general manager of the land products show in Minneapolis, who is here on business, brings the news of his odd method. This harvester de luxe also had an unusual plan of making his leaders do their full share of work. He had an air rifle, and when one of the leaders was shirking, ping! would go a shot, and the horse would wake up immediately. The method was entirely a success and beats a whip, Mr. Campbell says.

Business men from Dawson, Alaska, say that recent fires in the Yukon have destroyed timber worth $100,000,000.

HONOR A CIRCUS MAN IN VILLAGE

Dies Without Relatives and People of Wauconda Erect a Stone.

PAID FOR FUNERAL

People of the village of Wauconda, about forty miles northwest of Chicago, besides collecting a fund for the erection of a monument to the memory of a country doctor of the vicinity, the late James Dawson, have already constructed a modest granite shaft in honor of a circus actor, who died, almost in their sight, while amusing them.

He was Charles Ward, a trapeze artist with a traveling one-ring circus of the old-fashioned type, moving from place to place in wagons.

With Traveling Show.

Ward went to Wauconda July 16 last with a traveling dog and pony show. He was one of the star actors. Running away from home in boyhood, lured to the sawdust ring by its enchantments, he was 40 years old. Nothing is known of his past or whether he had kith or kin living.

Two weeks before the circus came to Wauconda Ward was warned by a physician that he had a severe case of heart disease and must not act again.

"What else can I do?" he asked, with the actor's fatalism. "That's all I know how to do now—act on the flying trapeze. I guess I'll have to stick it out."

On the night of the show at Wauconda Ward had just finished his act. He was sliding down a rope from his aerial perch when he was seen to stiffen and fall to the ground. He died within a few moments.

A Chicagoan named Sharde, a summer resort visitor to Wauconda, dismissed the audience.

Subscription List Started.

Wauconda had never seen or heard of Ward before. He had no claim on the village or its citizens. Nevertheless, headed by Sharde, a subscription list was at once started and soon a sum sufficient for the modest headstone was raised, over fifty persons giving small sums.

Fellow actors bought a lot in the cemetery and paid for the burial. Rev John Hallock of the local church preached the sermon. Two weeks later Waucondans had erected the monument to the memory of the man who had amused them, dying while at his appointed task.

TO BATTLE MENINGITIS.

I Farm Is to Prevent Shortage in Necessary Serum.

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—That the danger Kansas City faced last winter in the meningitis epidemic, when the supply of serum gave out, may not recur, is the intention of a group of men who have formed the American Biologic company in this city.

Dr. Frank J. Hall, who has offices in the Gloyd building, and three men from the municipal research laboratories of New York, Dr. A. Sophian, E. R. Alexander and T. Deaken, comprise the company, which has for its object the preparation of serums. They have procured the use of the Le Forest farm, at Eighty-seventh street and Wornall road, on which to pasture the animals they will use in their project, and will open their downtown laboratory at 1208 Wyandotte street. They will invest $30,000 in the enterprise.

"We have scoured Europe as well as the United States," said Dr. Hall, "to find the best equipment made for manufacturing serums. We will prepare serums to be used for curing tetanus, meningitis, diphtheria, and, later on, hog cholera."

MORE PROMISES MADE.

Letter to Lafayette Works Board From Traction Superintendent.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 24.—A letter from Superintendent Greensland, of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, was read at the meeting of the board of public works. Mr. Greensland tried to explain the situation to the board of works, saying that the switches and track over the city had not been improved because all of the men they could hire had been kept busy on the Main street track. He said the company would hire all the men possible and put them to work at once in improving the tracks over the city, and doing all the work the board ordered.

Arthur O. Cunningham, city attorney, advised that the latter be ignored, as this matter will be taken up with other demnads made by the city council at a meeting of the board, to be held next Monday night, when further action will be taken.

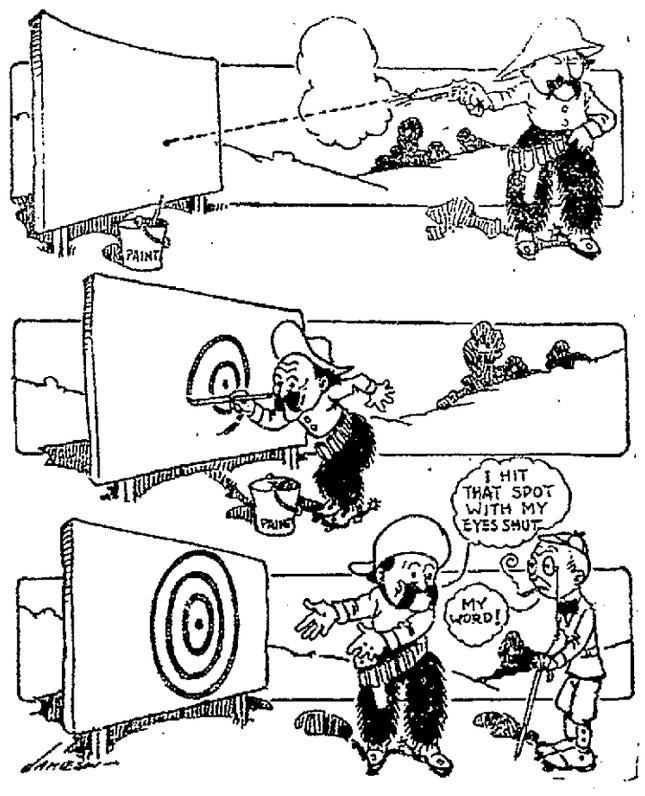
Truthful Ike



DR. HARDMAN, Specialist

I Cure Pelvic, Nervous and Chronic Diseases

Reduced Fees Until September 1st

Experiment may mean DEATH. Then it is too late. If HEALTH—LIFE—HAPPINESS mean anything to you, you cannot afford to put off getting well. There is not a moment that you can afford to lose.

Whether or not you can afford to rent a cheaper house, buy a cheaper piece of property or a cheap suit of clothes remains with your own judgment, but YOU KNOW, and everybody else knows, that no one can afford to take any chance with cheap treatment where health and happiness are at stake. Inexperience and cheap, unscientific methods too often lead to the grave or, what is even worse, to permanent physical disability which can only be cured by DEATH. Does it seem startling? Yet you know it to be a fact. Would you have a blacksmith try to fix your watch? Would you risk your life behind a locomotive that was run by a novice and who had no practical training? I think not. Would you even allow your wife or children to ride in a carriage drawn by unbroken or untrained horses? Certainly not. But do you think it more absurd than to trust your life and health to the inexperience of untrained doctors?

Think, and you will readily see the similarity of the situations.

The body (the storehouse of the soul) was loaned to us by AN ALLWISE CREATOR, and it is due HIM that we take a proper care of it—and if harm should come to it, in the way of disease, it is our duty to see that every possiblee means be utilized to fit it for the use that HE has intended.

Do you not think that it is time that you started on the road to health?

Do you not think that it is the part of wisdom to start with the best, instead of experiments with incompetent doctors, those who have made no special study of these chronic and deep-seated diseases? In other words, do you want to begin with a failure?

It costs nothing to be sociable. Come let me prove the advantages of my modern methods.

Every man that does less than he should do at his desk, in the shop or on the farm is weak in some way. I have found that the man who cannot accomplish all that he hopes or expects is often the silent sufferer from some hidden Chronic or Pelvic disease that is slowly but surely undermining his health, usually affecting one or more of the important nerve centers of the body, and as surely unfitting him for competing with his fellowmen who are strong and healthy.

These neglected or unknown conditions are usually diseases of the pelvic organs, which reflexly act on the organs of digestion, of elimination and the nervous system, which in turn has its influence on the brain. I have made a study of the nervous system and have perfected methods that will CURE Pelvic Diseases. I will give you a searching and thorough examination and explain to you the true nature of your trouble.

Hundreds of people in and about Fort Wayne who have taken advantage of my treatment are now satisfied and are enjoying the blessings of health. Many of these I have cured after they had vainly sought relief at the famous health resorts and spent much hard-earned cash in their efforts to get well.

Every day competition is getting more keen and the natural and inevitable result is that the weak must fall behind and watch those who are strong and healthy forge to the front.

I have spent years in the study and treatment of Pelvic, Nervous and Chronic Diseases and have perfected methods which will not only positively cure these chronic and deep-seated diseases, but will restore to a normal and healthy condition the broken-down and devitalized organs.

Think it over and consider if you can afford as a matter of business to neglect yourself and risk FAILURE because you are handicapped by disease.

Many a man has been forced to abandon a successful career because of some PELVIC or CHRONIC disease, which has insidiously wrecked his nervous system and unfitted him for performing the duties which he otherwise would have been able to perform.

It makes no difference how long you have been afflicted, if I accept your case I will positively cure you.

I have made it an invariable rule to accept no cases for treatment that I cannot cure. While this, of course, compels me to refuse to treat quite a good many cases which come to me, it has established a confidence in the public that when I accept a case for treatment I will accomplish a cure. This is the reason my business has grown to such remarkable proportions; that I have, beyond question, the largest business of my kind in the state, and hundreds of satisfied patients whom I have cured are ample evidence of my ability to successfully treat these chronic and deep-seated diseases in which the ordinary methods have failed. I HAVE NO TIME TO WASTE ON INCURABLE DISEASES.

BLOOD POISON—Only the most advanced methods are used by me in the treatment of Blood Poison and kindred diseases.

I use serums and vegetable drugs, and by their use I am able to rid the body of the poisons in about half the time necessary by the old methods. Besides Mercury and mineral poisons often ruin a man and leave him in a decidedly worse condition than before he began the treatment.

ECZEMA and other skin diseases are quickly and permanently cured.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN and nearly all nervous diseases are the direct result of Chronic or imperfectly treated PELVIC DISEASES, such as VARICOCELE, PILES, FISTULA, STRICTURE, etc. I not only remove the cause, but many years of experience in the treatment of nervous diseases enable me by special methods to revitalize the entire nervous system and to restore to perfect health nearly all sufferers from NERVOUS BREAKDOWN and VITAL WEAKNESS.

PROSTATIC ENLARGEMENT—This may result from a number of causes. The constant jarring and vibration of trains and trolley cars are a very potent cause. Bicycle riding and the use of riding implements on the farm are factors in producing this disease. In fact, the causes are so common that fully 75 per cent. of all adults are afflicted to a greater or less extent by this disease. The disease is so little understood, and as one of the principal symptoms is a pain in the back, it is usually called kidney trouble, and treated with local applications or sedatives, which can do no possible good whatever. I reduce the enlargement and have been able to cure about 90 per cent. of all cases.

VARICOCELE—I cure Varicocele in a few days' or weeks' time without the use of instruments.

PILES, FISTULA, ETC., cured without detention from business and without the use of the knife.

RUPTURES—I cure ruptures in a few treatments without the use of the knife and without pain or detention from business.

The wonderful growth of my business and the unprecedented success I have had in treating those chronic and deep seated diseases is due to a number of causes.

Clean advertising and clean business methods naturally bring to me an intelligent and self-respecting class of people.

I have always made it a rule never to put into my advertising anything that might be deemed vulgar or offensive by the most critical.

I have made it a point never to accept any case for treatment that I thought incurable.

I always give every one a thorough and systematic examination and endeavor to find the exact condition before I had begun treatment. I then treat the disease instead of the symptoms.

I treat only a few diseases and endeavor to thoroughly understand every one of them, instead of attempting to treat several hundred, which naturally would make it impossible to give more than a superficial study of each one.

Is it any wonder, then, why I have been so phenominally successful?

As to my responsibility, ask the banks or look me up in the commercial agencies.

All I ask is a fair chance and I will give you the cure you have paid others for.

Of all occupations dangerous to life the most hazardous is that of life-savers in the United States bureau of mines. The annual mortality amon gthem is at the rate of eighty a thousand. In the first year two sacrificed their lives out of a force of eighty, while seven others fell unconscious in the poisonous vapors of mines, but were rescued by their companions. And yet there is no difficulty in finding heroic men ready to undertake the duty.

The population of Ireland has decreased more than seventy-six thousand in the last ten years.

OLD INDIAN TYPE FAST GOING AWAY

Sculptor is Engaged to Make Bust Before Type Vanishes.

TO BE EXIBITED

Winnebago, Neb., Aug. 24.—The national government has at last recognized the importance of preserving for future generations a true likeness of the old Indian type, now fast disappearing, and Frank Micka, a New York sculptor, has been sent to the western Indian reservations to make busts and masks which will be placed in the United States National museum at Washington.

Mr. Micka is in Winnebago and is making studies of the very old Indians, as well as purer bloods of the younger age. For several months he has been among the Sioux in South Dakota, and after finishing his work among the Omahas and Winnebagoes, he will go to the Osages in Oklahoma, and thence to the Apaches and Navajos in New Mexico and Arizona. Altogether his work will require the greater part of a year before it is finished.

The completed busts and masks will first be placed on exhibition at the San Francisco Panama-Pacific exposition, but their permanent home will be in the museum at Washington.

"The greatest obstacle that I have to overcome," said Mr. Micka, "is the superstition of the Indians, especially of the women. They seem to think if a likeness is made of them it means their death. So they will not pose for me without great persuasion—and pay.

"When I came to work on the children," continued Mr. Mika. "I realized that the government had not begun an instant before it was necessary to begin, if the true Indian type was to be preserved. The children are diseased almost beyond belief. Of the 200 children I examined there were only two who were good models. Practically all of the others were suffering from disease.

"In a few more generations the Indian race will be almost extinct, or at least the distinctive characteristics of their forefathers will have disappeared. Most of the present day Indians bear the marks of civilization on their faces. The white man's way is removing the lines worn by the old Indian method of life."

FORSAKES HER HOBO LIFE.

Young Girl Found in Box Car by Police After She Ran Away.

Indianapolis, Aug. 24.—Ora Storts, seventeen years old, a dark-haired girl, was found with Thomas White, nineteen years old, in a box car in the Norwood railroad yards yesterday by Bicycle Policemen Hartsell and Chitwood. Ora had just changed men's clothes for her own girl's clothing and, she said, had decided not to be a hobo. Her home is at Chillicothe, Ohio, where she ran away several weeks ago. She reached Indianapolis two days ago and met White on the Circle. Both were arrested on loitering charges.

To Keep Skin in Fine Condition in Summer.

(From The Family Physician.)

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the heated term. Mixed with perspiration, dust and grime, these things are anything but beautifying. Ordinary mercolized wax will do more for the complexion, and without giving an oily, shiny, streaked, spotted or pasty appearance. It is the ideal application for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but daily removes particles of scarf skin which have been soiled by dirt or weather. By constantly keeping the complexion clear, white and satiny, it does more toward perpetuating a youthful countenance than any of the arts or artifices commonly employed. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, will completely renovate the worst complexion. It is the applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

To keep the skin from sagging or wrinkling, or to overcome such condition, there's nothing better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel.

SHE WANTS HIM TO CALL HER "MOTHER"

Woman, 21, Says Stepson, 39, Didn't Want to Do It.

SO THEY HAVE FIGHT

New York, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Madeline Gray, twenty-one years old, of No. 684 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, through a marriage of a week ago to sixty-four-year-old Richard Gray, at the Borough hall, acquired a thirty-nine-year-old stepson, Charles. Charles is also married, and his wife, Kathleen, twenty-two, is naturally the stepdaughter-in-law of the twenty-one-year-old Mrs. Gray.

Fortified by these legal connections the younger Mrs. Gray wanted her stepson to call her "mamma." But thirty-nine-year-old son Charles found it beneath his dignity to label, in personal address, his twenty-one-year-old mother by such an affectionate appellation, and said so in plain words, according to his stepmother.

All of which was disclosed in the Gates avenue court when Charles was arraigned before Magistrate McGuire by his stepmother for disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Gray said in court that her son, who just wouldn't call her "mamma," had called her plenty of other names and had also experimented wth a family clothes hanger upon her head. As Charles was not in condition to defend the charge the Magistrate committed him to the Kings county hospital.

Charles' wife, Kathleen, was in court beside her younger stepmother-in-law and seemed perfectly willing to call her "mamma" to her face.

PHONES HER WAY INTO JAIL.

Woman Arrested on Complaint of City Detective Howe.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Ten months of telephone calls, all from one woman and running as high as three or four in succession after midnight, were several months too many for Detective Lawrence Howe, of the city detective bureau.

He rebelled, swore out a warrant for Elizabeth Dalton, 1225 West Congress street, a 20-year-old telephone operator in the county building, and had her arrested.

According to Howe, the telephone operator spends a good deal of time talking with policemen. He says she talked with him pretty steadily for two months when she first learned his house number three years ago. Then he broke away and was not troubled until ten months ago.

"About then I was married and had a telephone put in the house," he said, "and the calls commenced coming again. They would come three times a night, sometimes after midnight, and often four nights a week.

"And I'm not the only one. This woman kept calling up Detective Isaac Rosenthal, who was at Harrison street several years ago, until he had to take the telephone from his house, and another detective lately has been getting the same treatment."

The girl's story differs from Howe's. She says he paid her attention for some time and she expected to marry him. She also says she is going to prefer charges against him. She had several remarks to make regarding her arrest, among others that policeman 4632 struck her several times while she was being taken to South Clark street in the patrol wagon.

LOCATES MOUNTAIN OF JADE.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 24.—After living in the wilderness at the head of the Kobuk river, on the arctic coast of Alaska, for nearly twenty years, Walter Koen has discovered a mountain of jade for which prospectors have searched many years as a result of Eskimo legends.

Nearly all Alaska Eskimos possess jade ornaments handed down from their forefathers. Late generations had lost knowledge of the source of supply.

Koen has brought out, by way of Nome, two tons of green and black jade. He says it equals the best jade of Japan and New Zealand.

CUPID HANDLES A STRANGE JOB

Philadelphia Man Says He's Not One Married in New York.

"MY-MY" SAYS WIFE

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—John McManns Seyfert, a wealthy member of the machinery firm of L. F. Seyfert Sons, Inc., says he has employed detectives to ascertain who the John McManns Seyfert is who took out a license in New York which permitted him to marry Grace Anne Wilson, whose address was given as this city.

Mr. Seyfert is forty-six years old and the man who took out the marriage license in New York said he was forty-six years of age. But the local Mr. Seyfert declares he has been married ten years and Mrs. Seyfert corroborates the statement.

Seyfert declared that he didn't know the man who took out the New York license. He thought it might be a practical joke. Anyway, he says, he expects the detectives he has employed will clear up the mystery.

"Why, we have been living right in this house for six years," said Mrs. Seyfert, "and if John married anybody else I don't know anything about it."

She treated the whole incident as a joke, but declared that the only thing that bothered her was as to how she would explain it to the neighbors.

"My husband took me on a business trip to Allentown the other day and then we went to New York," she continued. "Why, here is my wedding ring as absolute proof that we have been married ten years. Why, my maid will tell you we have been married six years at least." And Mrs. Seyfert called the the maid.

"But good heavens! Just think! Why, if it is true I will have to sue for a divorce, won't I?"

With this remark Mr. Seyfert decided his wife had done quite enough talking.

The ivy outlives 200 years; the elm, 300 to 350 years; the linden, 500 to 1,000 years; the locust tree and the oak, 400 years; the fir, 700 to 1,200 years, and palm trees, 3,000 to 5,000 years.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 24.—Wheat today showed a bullish tendency, the principal incentive being higher cables. December opened at 93½c to 93⅞c and rested at 93¾c. September opened at 94⅛c to 94⅝c and quieted at 94⅛c.

The close was firm with September ¼@⅜c higher at 94@94⅛c. December finished ½c up at 93⅝c.

Good demand gave corn an upturn, the initial advance being from ⅛c to ⅜c with September leading. Immediate wants being supplied, values fell off from the high points. September opened at 72⅞c to 73c and eased off to 72¼c. December started at 54⅛c to 54⅜c and gravitated to 54¼c.

The close was steady with September ⅛c lower at 72¼c, 1c above the bottom price. December closed ⅜c higher at 54⅜c.

Oats were firm with a considerable volume of trade. September opened at 32½c to 32⅝c and rose to 32¾c. December started at 33c to 33⅛c and rested at 33c.

Higher prices for live hogs gave a firm tone to provisions. October products opened with pork at $17.97½; lard, $11.00, and ribs, $11.00.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Aug. 24.—Although active issues were comparatively neglected the general undertone of the market at the opening today was strong. The features were American Snuff, which rose 7 points and Mexican petroleum, which advanced a point. The Hill and Harriman issues, as well as Reading and Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western all registered fractional gains.

The market closed firm. The one prominent feature of today's dull market was the acute weakness of Canadian Pacific, which added materially to the recent declines. Selling of this stock was ascribed to the earnest opposition which has arisen in the Dominion over the proposed stock increase. Bonds were steady.

FIRST BREAK IN OLD LINE

ans who are willing to fill the vacancies just as soon as the departing candidates legally withdraw by filing their resignations with the county clerk.

"Just as soon as D. D. Miller, nominee for representative, legally resigns," said Mr. Houk, "there are two men willing and anxious to take the place made vacant. I received Mr. Miller's resignation this morning, but it will be several days before I call a meeting of the central committee to act upon it."

It is reported that if other candidates are persuaded by Col. D. N. Foster and other Bull Moosers to withdraw from their party, the central committee will be called late next week for the purpose of filling all vacancies. Mr. Miller, the candidate for representative, in resigning, was informed that he will be nominated to a similar candidacy on the progressive ticket at the convention to be held at the Majestic theater August 31.

"I did not authorize any meeting of candidates, central committeemen or others," said Mr. Houk in speaking of the session today, at which time candidates are to be asked to resign. "Any action taken by them will not be binding upon the republican party in this county. If they want to resign, let them go to it, for I have any number of men willing to step into their places at a moment's notice."

Why They Organize.

Will C. Geake, a former republican who has flopped to the ranks of the progressives, in debate this morning with Charles R. Lane, republican nominee for congress from the Twelfth district, attempted to explain just why the progressives are going to organize the counties and districts of the state.

"The progressives are going to organize," said Mr. Geake, "to offset any idea in the minds of others that the party is formed merely to protest the presidential nominee. It is organized for the purpose of letting others know that it is a permanent party, to go on in after years, and not a crowd of republicans who will go back to the old party after the election. There are numbers of people who are willing to become identified with the new party, and we must organize permanently, showing beyond a doubt that the party is here to stay and when they quit their old parties they will have some place to go to. Many democrats are against their party this campaign. They do not want to and will not vote for the republican ticket, therefore the idea of a new party of progressives meets their demands."

Mr. Lane Replies.

"Those who call themselves progressives have no principles justifying the organization of a third party," replied Mr. Lane. "They have really no right to term the proposed party the progressive party, as the word progressive offers no exclusive use. All political parties have in their platforms nothing but progressivism, and the word is too widely used and too generally adopted to warrant one particular set of men adopting it as a party name.

"The great crowd of progressives do not believe in distinctive things in their platform, and the things they do believe in are those things advocated by other political parties. They have no right to use the name 'progressive.'"

Don't Want the Place.

Neither Will C. Geake nor Lee J. Hartzell will accept the office of county chairman of the progressives. Both declare their own business is too pressing for them to devote any time to politics. Mr. Geake states that it is his desire to remain as a private in the ranks, doing work as such for the third party.

WINONA CROWDED FOR CONFERENCE

Hotels and Boarding Houses Full and Excellent Program is On.

BEST IN HISTORY

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 24.—The Winona Bible conference of 1912 opened on Friday morning for what promises to be one of the largest and strongest Bible conferences in the history of Winona. In spite of the fact that the opening day was set two days earlier than ever before, the audience was large, and the platform was crowded with men of power in the religious world, as well as with the large chorus choir which promises to contribute so much to the inspiration of the sessions. The hotels and boarding houses are crowded and one of the largest crowds of the season is already on the grounds to remain throughout the ten days of the conference.

The formal opening took place Friday morning at 11 o'clock, with Dr. Sol C. Dickey, the director, presiding. Rev. Mark A. Matthews, D. D., of Seattle, Wash., the moderator of the General Presbyterian assembly, and the pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in the world, gave the keynote sermon. It was a powerful address and will be followed by others during the opening days of the conference. Prof. W. P. Patterson, of Edinburg, Scotland, one of the ablest members of the faculty of the University of Edinburg and a recognized scholar and preacher, spoke in the afternoon, as did Dr. Camden Cobern, the famous archaeologist, who gave an historical sermon-lecture on "Jonah." Rev. J. Cynddylyn Jones, of Cardiff, Wales, another foreign power in the evangelistic world, who will be with the conference, spoke on Friday evening before an enthusiastic audience.

Many of the same speakers will continue with the conference on Saturday and Sunday, additions to the list of prominent Sunday preachers being Dr. James A. Macdonald, the editor of the Toronto Globe, and Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, the associate director of the conference and a powerful evangelist.

After a successful summer term of ten weeks the Indiana University Biological Station at Winona Lake concluded its summer course with the examinations of Friday morning. Sixty students have been enrolled for the work in zoology, biology and advanced sciences and have found the work at the station thorough and well equipped. The surroundings of Winona Lake offer excellent advantages for the study of birds, bugs and lake formations.

AGAIN MEETS IN THIS CITY.

Seventh Annual Re-union of Old M. E. Collegt Students on Thursday.

The 1911 reunion of the students and faculty of the old Methodist Episcopal college, which was held in the Anthony hotel in this city, was the first to take place away from Winona, and the experiment proved so enjoyable that the 1912 reunion is also to be held in Fort Wayne. Thursday, August 29, is the date chosen, and invitations have been sent to Spencer R. Smith, of Lake Forest academy, and Prof. William G. Seaman, of Depauw university, both of whom will deliver addresses at the reunion. The reunion will begin at 1:30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon at the Anthony hotel.

RELIEF IS PROMISED.

The exhaust pipes on Nickel Plate engines in the future are to be placed in the stacks, the experiment of placing them under the engines and using mufflers having proved unsatisfactory because of the great noise. Complaints from residents along the Nickel Plate right-of-way had been received by the board of safety, and at a conference with Mayor Grice and Chairman Hutzell, of the board, held Friday afternoon, the Nickel Plate officials promised to have the exhausts placed back in the smokestacks, where they do not make so much noise.

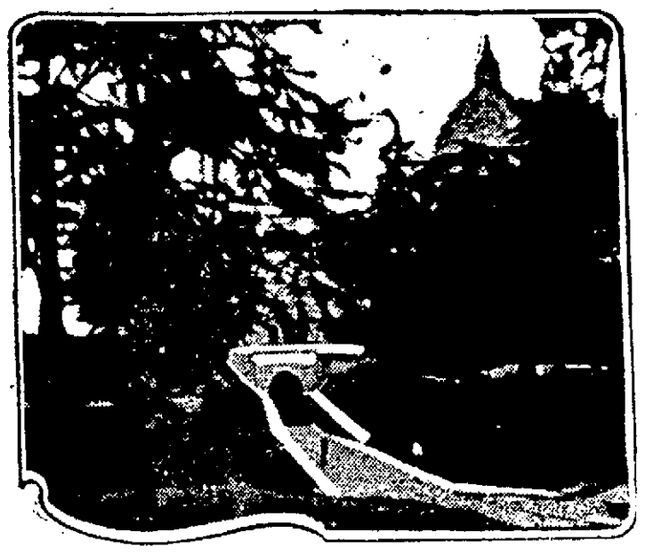
Pope Finds Relief from Tourists in Tunnel to Vatican Gardens.



EXIT OF THE TUNNEL INTO THE VATICAN GARDENS, SHOWING DOME OF ST. PETER'S AND PORTIONS OF VATICAN PALACE IN BACKGROUND.

Rome, August 24.—Pope Pius X has solved the problem of the American tourists, and his own life as well as that of his successors may be considerably lengthened as a result.

For the last fifty years, since the unification of Italy, the pope, who declares himself a prisoner in the Vatican at the hands of the new government of Italy, has had no place in which to exercise save in the Vatican gardens at the rear of the Vatican palace.

Unfortunately, there was no entrance into these gardens for the pope without first traversing two miles of sculpture and art galleries.

These galleries were always open to the public, and there was scarcely any moment of the day, any day of the year, that they were not filled with American tourists. As a result, the pope had to take his daily drive or walk either very early in the morning before the galleries opened, or late in the afternoon, when they were closed.

A huge tunnel, wide enough for the papal carriage and half a mile long, now leads from beneath the papal apartments under the sculpture and art galleries, and directly into the Vatican gardens.

The pope descends to this tunnel by means of the one elevator in the Vatican, and his daily ride or walk is now taken at whatever hour he wants it and without the fatigue of the long walk afoot that it was formerly necessary to take before the gardens could be reached.

And in the meantime, the American tourists are in no way whatsoever disturbed.

EACH WARD IS TO HAVE A DIRECTOR

Young Democrats of Allen County Organize and Elect Officers.

TALK WITH JOHNSON

The young democrats who met last night at Odeon hall and perfected the organization of a democratic club for Fort Wayne and Allen county, will hold another meeting within a short time for the purpose of selecting vice chairmen for each city ward. This afternoon a few of those who participated in the first meeting held a short conference with County Chairman Johnson, of the central committee, and discussed plans for campaign work to be started at once.

About one hundred prominent young men attended the meeting and Harry Lowry was elected president. Harry Muller was made secretary of the organization. Odeon hall was selected as the permanent meeting place. Two general county meetings will be held under the auspices of the club before the election in November, and will be addressed by such men as Mayor Henry F. Hunt, of Cincinnati, and ex-Congressman Korbly, of Indianapolis.

Among the speakers last night were A. C. Gladieux, democratic candidate for sheriff of Allen county; Allen Hursh, candidate for county recorder, and Glenn Smiley. A committee of twenty was selected to solicit memberships.

It is understood that there will be many entrants in the contests and that interest will be high throughout the day.

AGED MAN IS HURT.

Ed Nestel Cut and Bruised by a Lewis Street Car Friday Night.

Lewis street car No. 128 struck and knocked down Edward Nestel, an aged man, at the corner of Lafayette and Lewis streets, Friday night shortly before 10 o'clock. Nestel, who is partially blind, was going north on Lafayette street and failed to notice the approaching street car. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where his head and shoulders were found to be badly cut and bruised and other portions of his body were bruised. Despite his age, it is believed the injured man will recover, however. Mr. Nestel rooms at 338 East Jefferson street.

CITY'S EXHIBIT PRAISED.

Fort Wayne's exhibit for the hygiene congress at Washington, D. C., next month, has been given especial praise by Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the Indiana state board of health. The exhibit was prepared by Dr. Crull and Dr. Gillie, of the local health department. Owing to the tardiness of other cities in the state, Dr. Hurty has had to abandon the display of the various Indiana exhibits for the few days before they are forwarded to Washington.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company has made plans to hold a picnic for the employes at Lafayette August 27, and one at Boyd park on August 29. These two picnics will be attended by traction employes who were unable to attend the picnic held at Robison park last Tuesday.

A local council of the Ladies of the Royal League will be instituted next Wednesday evening at Harmony hall, when the first class, composed of about fifty, will receive the degree. Professor Rountree, of Chicago, will act as installing officer and will be assisted by Supreme Scribe C. E. Piper and Supreme Archon W. E. Hyde.

News from Washington carries information that the committee on public buildings and grounds, includes among other things in its report, provision for a new government building at Kendallville. Congressman Cyrus Cline is responsible for this provision in the committee report.

BOOSTS IN SALARIES

For Police and Fire Department Heads Asked by the Board.

The board of safety in its estimate for the coming year is asking for an increase in the salaries of the city patrolmen and of the heads of the police and fire departments. The board desires that Chief Hilbrecht, of the fire department, and Chief Abbott, of the police department, be advanced from $125 to $150 per month; Captain Rundell from $105 to $110; Lieutenant Eisenhut from $90 to $95; Assistant Fire Chief Jaspar from $100 to $110, and Chief Engineer C. O. Miller from $90 to $95. The new scale of salaries for the patrolmen includes a general advance of $5; $70 for the first six months, $75 for the second six months and $80 after the first year of service.

The board also asks for an appropriation of $7,500 with which to purchase a new auto chemical.

There Is Only One Way

To know this establishment—only one way to fully enjoy its benefits and profit by its economies and that is to make it a point of visitation every time you are on a shopping tour; to always to include it in the list of places to visit, whether you are intent on purchasing or not. We will keep you posted on the changing fashions and aid you with suggestions.

The Forecast of Styles

Indicates a season of beautiful garments, for in no past season have the fashion makers designed more distinctive, artistic and graceful models. The makers of fabrics have brought out a wonderful array of dress stuffs that will harmonize in weave and coloring with the correct fashions. Silks and velvets will be extensively used and the finer grades of dress goods will be in high favor. We ask you to make all the comparisons you like of qualities and prices, for we are sure that there will be no stock anywhere superior to that which we will offer you this fall.

The Rurode Dry Goods Co.

Last Vacation Romp is on Wednesday, August 28th.

A special day at the park could hardly take place without hundreds of kiddies writing Mr. Williams that they were looking forward to the event. These letters have been the real compensation for all the labor and planning on Mr. Williams' part. He has expressed his appreciation for the children's good will and kind thoughts in the past by awarding prizes on all fete days. He will give forty-two prizes on August 28; twenty-one for girls and twenty-one for boys. Try to tell Mr. Williams in your letters about the sports, games and things you like best, so he will know how to entertain you next summer. The first prize for best letter written by a girl will be a diamond ring. The first prize for best letter written by a boy will also be a diamond ring. The other prizes will be gold scraf pins of Pompeian designs for the boys and solid gold rings for the girls.

Dentist.

THE TEETH.

Decay is caused by allowing particles of food to remain between the teeth and in their crevices, where chemical action takes place and by reason of the uniform warmth of the mouth and the presence of acids formed there, the enamel of the teeth is destroyed and the dentine, or inner structure, is exposed to the action of acids and bacteria.

If allowed to go uncared for these decayed teeth not only become a source of distress in themselves, aside from their effect upon personal appearance, but, too, through inability to properly masticate the food and thoroughly prepare it for the stomach the process of digestion is seriously interfered with. Many persons are continually taking medicine for dyspepsia, indigestion and kindred troubles when in reality their ills arise from poison thrown into the system from decayed teeth and unmasticated food.

If there is any reason for caring for the teeth, there is every reason for doing so without delay—since delay means more work and more expense.

Modern operations dispense with cumbersome and time-consuming methods and work is done better and the cost is less.

My office is located at 916 Calhoun street, over App's shoe store. Sign reads: "Dr. J. C. Lehman, Dentist." I make no charge for consultation. On the contrary, will be glad to have you call and talk over the work you wish to have done.

Woman's Part In The Civil War

Popular novels and dramas have dealt with the sentiment and nobility that the women of the North and South brought in those grim days from 1861 to 1865.

Old soldiers, too, have tried to put in words what a touch of feminity meant to them. But the pen of a great dramatist or novelist or of the soldier could express but partially the work of the noble women who left the ease and security of home for the duties of nurse in the plague-stricken camp, or the "field hospital" that followed close to the battle smoke.

This vitally important service which women rendered on both sides of the heroic struggle is recalled more vividly than ever by the recently discovered

LOUISA M. ALCOTT
The Author of "Little Women" as a Nurse in 1862.

Long-Lost, Original

Brady War Photographs

(Illustrating Elson's Newly Written Civil War History)

One of the pictures in this wonderful collection shows an afternoon concert at Harewood Hospital. Accompanying this interesting scene is a portrait of Louisa M. Alcott, as a nurse in 1862.

Another of the Brady portraits is that of Clara Barton, who took part in the relief work on the battlefield and organized the search for missing men.

One scene in particular you will remember again and again—a Sanitary Commission nurse with her wounded patients—not one of whom were without crutches.

But the days of '61-'65 brought women exciting adventure as well as solemn duties. Scattered throughout the 16 portfolios of Original Brady War Photographs you can see the picture of one woman after another who voluntarily risked ignominious death, time and again, as a secret agent or spy. You can see faces alight with youth and beauty—and yet you read that these girls in quest of the information that their general so desperately needed, risked detection, and the instant, nameless execution which would follow it, by entering into the enemy's lines.

The Federal army had numerous women scouts and secret service agents, one of the most famous being "Major" Pauline Cushman, who barely escaped hanging. She was actually under sentence of death, having been caught within the lines of the Confederacy, but she escaped and managed to regain the Union lines in the confusion of the evacuation of Shelbyville. The joy of the soldiers at her safe return was indescribable.

This is only one of the women whose sweet faces are pictured, and brave deeds recounted in

Other women who played an important part in that great conflict between the North and South are Mrs. Rose O'Neal Greenhow, the Confederate Spy, who was arrested by Allan Pinkerton; Belle Boyd, another ardent daughter of the Confederacy, who was of the greatest assistance to Jackson in planning his brilliant charge on Front Royal; and Nancy Hart, a Virginia mountain girl, whose work was so valuable to the South that the Federal Government offered large rewards for her capture. After her capture, she managed to get hold of her guard's gun, killed him, and escaped on the horse of the Colonel of the Regiment,

DOES IT PAY TO PEACH ON YOURSELF?

That's What Bill Burke Will Find Out, While He's Testing Our Christianity.

(Editor's Note.—The experience of Councilman William Burke, of Philadelphia, furnishes a striking example of the difficulty of a criminal getting back to the straight and narrow path. He was elected to the council on a "reform ticket." After a period of faithful public service and exemplary private life, he suddenly resigned his office last week and confessed to a long criminal career, including a seven years' term in the Massachusetts state prison. He was impoverished and driven to the revelation by pitiless blackmail on the part of a former convict, who threatened to expose him.)

Do we really feel as we think we feel when we read the story of the greatest character in all fiction—Jean Valjean, the escaped convict in Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Miserables?"

It is said of Lawrence Sterne he shed tears over a dead ass, but was callous to the sufferings of a living mother. Are we a nation of Sternes who shed tears over the sorrows of an imaginary Jean Valjean, and send back to "hell," as he calls the outcast's life, a real Jean Valjean in the person of Alderman William Burke, of Philadelphia?

Burke was born a gutter-snipe and knew neither father nor mother. He became a thief, as you or I probably would have done under the circumstances. Because of his natural ability—which would have made him a success in any other [illegible] became what the underworld calls "a good thief." He was unvaryingly successful until he became a drug fiend and then he was caught because, as he says, a dope fiend "hasn't nerve enough to steal unless he has the stuff in him, and then he has no brains."

He served seven years in state's prison. He broke himself of the drug habit. Would you or I have done that?

He thought out his life task and resolved to live a straight life when he got out. And he made good on his resolves. Would you or I have done that?

He saved a little money while working at his trade of wood finisher after he left prison with a suit of clothes and $5. Would you or I have done that?

He won the respect of his neighbors. He went into business and made some money. He married a respectable girl and has a child. He was a good speaker and helped to carry Philadelphia for the reform ticket, which broke the hold of the old gang on that town.

And now he has sent in his resignation, with a full statement of the tragic facts of his life. He took it for granted that he would be execrated as soon as the people found out his secret. He intends to live straight and make a living for his family, but he seems to assume that nobody will give him credit for his triumph over the doom of birth, neglect and education in crime.

Is he right in his estimate of the unforgiving character of the American people? He has shown greater qualities in getting out of a life of crime than most of us have shown in keeping out. Is he right in thinking us incapable of seeing that fact?

Mayor Blankenburg is in favor of not accepting Burke's resignation. Will Philadelphia stand with Blankenburg, or will those who think themselves without sin cast the stones at Burke which shall drive him out into the darkness?

It is a test of our sincerity in admiring Jean Valjean.

It is a test of our Christianity.

ENJOY ALL-DAY PICNIC.

Fifty Sunday School Pupils of Salvation Army Have Outing.

The Sunday school class at the Salvation Army citadel is enjoying an all-day picnic at Swinney park today. The fifty young boys and girls formed a line of march at the citadel at 10 o'clock this morning and marched to the place of recreation. A big dinner was prepared for the children, who made merry in games and play. They returned to their homes during the afternoon.

TWO BOUND OVER IN GRAFT CASES

Pair of Detroit Aldermen Held on Detective's Evidence.

NEW PLEA DEVELOPS

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—Alderman Louis Tossy and Martin J. Ostrowski were bound over to recorder's court to stand trial on charges of having received bribes; seventeen aldermen and former Council Committee Clerk Edward R. Schreiter appeared in police court to answer a blanket warrant alleging conspiracy to defraud the city and secured a continuance of the hearing until Sept. 10, and Justice Jeffries announced that on Wednesday afternoon he would sit as a grand jury to hear all cases of alleged election frauds and other matters the prosecuting attorney may care to bring before him.

Such was yesterday's chapter in the prosecution of Detroit's graft and election fraud cases.

Tossy and Ostrowski were bound over on practically the same evidence as was given to hold Aldermen Glinnan and Brozo for trial. Detective Brennan was the principal witness. He testified that on July 25 he paid $200 to Tossy and $200 to Ostrowski in return for their alleged agreement to use their influence in putting through the city council legislation favorable to the Wabash railroad.

After the two cases were disposed of court adjourned until Wednesday afternoon, today being state primary election day, a legal holiday.

New Plea Develops.

One piece of new and rather surprising evidence was offered by the defense. During Ostrowski's examination, while the detective occupied the stand, the alderman's attorneys brought out that shortly after Ostrowski's arrest on July 26, he, Detective Brennan and several city officials met at the home of Ostrowski's pastor and there the alderman admitted having received the $200 from Brennan.

The manner in which the defense framed its questions indicated the possibility of Ostrowski at his trial offering the plea that he accepted the money as a campaign contribution. Detective Brennan denied that at this meeting Ostrowski was promised immunity from prosecution for acknowledgment of the money acceptance.

Prosecuting Attorney Shepherd made formal application to Judge Jeffries for warrants against several notaries public, charged with having violated election laws, but the judge decided not to grant the warrnts until his grand jury investigation has been completed.

GORDON DID NOT APPEAR.

Let Go on Own Recognisance and He Was Not in City Court.

Steven Gordon wanted to get out of the city prison last night, where he had been held for some time on a charge of public intoxication and as he was sober and promised to show up today he was let go. He didn't appear and the police will get him.

Bert Williams was fined $14 and costs for cutting the tires on a bicycle at the home of Walted Heilman in the course of a "belling" that followed a wedding. He paid the fine. A case against Abner Lantz was dismissed and it was found that Calvin Lantz, George Miller, Wayne Niece, Max Frankenstein, Walter Hinton, Wes Wiekart and Henry and William Dowell, involved in the affair by Abner Lantz, did not do any damage.

Special dinner tomorrow, 25c; 11 a. m. to 2 p. m., at the Hof Brau.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS FATAL.

Physician Orders Private Funeral for Child at Wabash.

Wabash, Ind., Aug. 27.—The first death to occur in Wabash from anterior acute poliomylitis, commonly known as infantile paralysis, since the disease was recognized by the state board of health as being highly contagious, took place when the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Brown passed away after an illness of three days. Not until less than three hours before death was the malady pronounced infantile paralysis. Acting under rules of the state board of health, Dr. N. H. Thompson issued instructions for a private funeral. A quarantine has been established and every effort will be put forth to prevent a spread of the disease.

SHIVELY TO VISIT WILSON.

Indiana Senator Has Given Up Plan to Investigate Mexican Trouble.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Senator Shively will depart tonight for Seagirt at the invitation of Governor Wilson to discuss political matters with the democratic presidential nominee. From Seagirt he expects to go to New York for a peep in at democratic national headquarters. He will go from there to Brookville, Pa., where his family has been for several weeks, and they will motor from Brookville to their home at South Bend. Senator Shively has given up his plan of going to the Mexican frontier to investigate revolutionary troubles.
